SHOE, DENTAL X-RAYS INJURIOUS TO HEALTH

Atomic scientists in both the United States and Britain, in separate reports carried on page 7 in today's Times, express concern over increasing use of radio-active devices in medicine.

Unnecessary X-rays, including dental X-rays, and X-rays for the fitting of shoes, are frowned upon.

Main body of the report, however, deals with the danger of fall-out from the H-bomb tests. One British scientist believes that the entire milk supply in the U.S. has been made radio-active.

Nine Killed In French Rail Crash

Many Serious

RHEIMS, France (Reuters)—At least nine persons were killed and 146 injured today when the crack Paris-Luxembourg express jumped the tracks at near-by Fismes and crashed into a bridge.

Police said 30 of the injured are in critical condition. Firemen, police and railway workers used acetylene torches to cut away the wreckage in which they feared more dead were lying.

The fourth car of the train was reported to have jumped the tracks when a coupling snapped. The car crashed into the bridge supports, derailing the eight remaining cars.

The Fismes air raid siren was sounded to summon help as every available ambulance blamed the crash on either a broken coupling or broken axle.

GHASTLY CRIES

The train had left Paris' Gare du Nord terminus at 7.20 this morning and was to make a first stop at Rheims 20 minutes after the crash occurred at 8.51. Traffic on the line is expected to be interrupted for 36 hours while workmen repair the damaged track and cranes lift the wreckage.

A shopkeeper with premises a few yards from the scene said the express left the rails with "a fearful noise."

"Thick smoke swirled about the train. I saw people covered in blood staggering out of the smoke. Ghastrly cries could be heard from the wreckage."

Some of the dead were catapulted from the train by the impact and then dragged along the ground before the coaches fell on top of them.

BENNETT PREDICTS SASKATCHEWAN WIN

SASKATOON (CP)—Premier Bennett of British Columbia predicts Saskatchewan voters next week will elect enough Social Crediters to form the province's next government.

"The opposing parties got a surprise in British Columbia in 1952," Premier Bennett said, "and I think they will get a surprise here June 20."

Although Premier Bennett has many times forecast that the Socials would win a "number of seats" in Saskatchewan, this is his first prediction that Social Credit will elect a government.

PENSTOCK BREAK CAUSED POWER FAILURE

caused temporary power blackout on Vancouver Island. Pipe, 12 feet in diameter, was built nine years ago, and was first to serve huge Campbell River plant.

Experts Back Mica Dam Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton disclosed today that consulting engineers have proved the feasibility of a $247,000,000 hydro-electric power station at Mica Creek on the Columbia River in British Columbia.

The Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission also described as "frivolous" new United States proposals for construction of the proposed Libby dam in western Montana.

Testifying before the Commons external affairs committee, Gen. McNaughton ruled out proposals for construction of 10 dams on the Fraser River and its tributaries for harnessing power and facilitating the movement of salmon up and downstream.

Gen. McNaughton said the report on the proposed Mica Creek project, which would do much to relieve B.C.'s present and future power shortages, was prepared by the commission's international Columbia River engineering board.

The commission has been considering for some time the possibility of a dam on the Columbia at Mica Creek, about 150 miles north of Revelstoke.

B.C. DECISION

He said the board's report is a firm conclusion that a dam would be a sound economic proposition at Mica Creek. It would have an installed capacity of about 1,500,000 kilowatts. "We now have a completely firm proposition for Mica," he said. "In a few months the designs in the board's report could be changed into engineering drawings."

Outside the committee, Gen. McNaughton said the final decision on whether a power project will be built at Mica Creek rests with the B.C. government. It was understood that resources Minister Lesage will discuss the matter with Premier Bennett in Victoria June 25.

Tories Will Force House To Sit Through Summer

By VICTOR MACKIE

Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Conservative members of Parliament are prepared to continue the present session of Parliament to the end of August if necessary. It was learned Thursday following a Progressive Conservative caucus.

All hope of an early summer adjournment of the session has now ended.

The Progressive Conservatives are determined to question each item in the estimates and to scrutinize the budget provisions and new legislation in great detail. They contend that they have lost confidence in the present administration and intend to oppose vigorously provisions in the estimates or legislation which does not have their approval.

No Relief Seen

TORONTO (CP)—Citizens in central Canada, almost prostrated from two consecutive days of record-breaking temperatures, boiled both from and at the weather today as they were promised yet another scorcher.

Toronto residents, especially, were hot under the collar in more ways than one as they were told to brace themselves for a high of 95 degrees.

Ontario and Quebec residents were complaining about the cold weather only two weeks ago.

Engineers Probe Cause of Collapse In Hart Penstock

A night-long battle by construction men who built new foundations under a sagging 12-foot wooden pipe at the John Hart hydro development resulted in the island's electrical power supply returning to normal today.

A preliminary estimate, made prior to detailed examination, set the amount of damage at $25,000 to $50,000.

It followed an island-wide blackout Wednesday night, when the collapse of footings supporting the oldest of three wood-stave pipes carrying water to the powerhouse, opened great holes in the pipe and damaged a second.

The plant was closed down immediately, and portions of Victoria and other Island areas were without power for up to 50 minutes. Island industries were threatened, but the plant now is operating at two-thirds of capacity—sufficient to meet all demands at this time of year.

As the first pipe sagged the staves spread and released a torrent of water, which in turn undermined footings under the second pipe. The third was unharmed.

Just what caused the ground

to give way under the first pipe is not known, but it is suspected that a leak occurred where the wooden pipe joints a steel conduit for the last plunge down to the powerhouse turbines.

The pipe is inspected regularly. Although damage appears to be moderate, pulp mills at Har-mac, Duncan Bay and Alberni lost production on their grave- yard shifts.

It was feared that they would be shut down for weeks. But fast work by B.C. Power Commission crews restored service within a few minutes on No. 3 penstock, which feeds water to two of the six 20,000-kilowatt generators in the powerhouse. Nine hours later another two units were back in production.

Saw Water Racing Down on Plant

First intimation of trouble

came when powerhouse crews saw water racing down the hill overlooking the plant and town-site. The water swept into the plant and flooded basements in homes.

"I was notified, and made an immediate check," said Arthur E. Price, plant superintendent. "Then I ordered everything shut down. That is what caused the blackout."

Commission headquarters was notified of the trouble, and repair crews were alerted to prepare for the all-night session.

Three of the cradles supporting the second penstock had been undermined by water pouring from the first," he said.

"A 12-man crew went to work right away putting wooden shoring under it, and by 5.30 a.m. we were able to say we would have the pipe repaired in another two hours."

A Northern Construction Co.

crew repaired the damage to footings under the second penstock, he said.

About 60 feet of pipe was damaged and will have to be rebuilt.

Although water from the break approached the powerhouse, it did nothing more than "dirty the floor," Mr. Price said. "It caused no damage," he said.

"At this time of year four generating units and the Puntledge plant can meet all our demands on the island," Mr. Price said.

B.C. Power Commission spokesmen here said representatives of a Vancouver wood stave pipe firm were to meet with engineers today to discuss replacement of the damaged pipe.

Investigation By Engineers Ordered

In addition, H. G. Acres and Company of Niagara Falls, consulting engineering firm that designed the project and supervised construction, has been retained to make a full investigation of the breakage.

Engineers T. B. Bird, Ed Mar-zocco and A. W. Lash of the Power Commission left here last night to check the trouble. Dr. H. J. MacLeod, acting chairman of the commission, also went north today for a first-hand inspection of the damage.

Here in Victoria, where the commission provides about 50 per cent of the power used, emergency circuits serving hospitals and the downtown sector were kept alive but other portions of Greater Victoria were without light and power for up to 50 minutes.

"When there is a sudden loss of electricity like that, circuit breakers are tripped throughout the system," a B.C. Electric spokesman said. "They must be built back gradually, and last night the restoration of power had to be dovetailed into the repair work being done at John Hart."

BCE's Jordan River plant maintained full production and the standby Brentwood steam plant was activated immediately.

Even the tiny Goldstream plant, one of the oldest hydro-electric installations on the Pacific Coast, was pressed into service today.

Car Headlights Keep Bingo Going

Although Nanaimo, Campbell River, and parts of Victoria were out of power for 50 minutes, the blackout lasted only 13 minutes in the Alberni, the Duncan-Cowichan district and Salt Spring Island.

There was no damage anywhere except that to the pipe. Nanaimo hospital took the inconvenience in its stride and reported no difficulty whatever.

The 3,300 patrons at a Nanaimo Kinsmen's bingo had just finished one game when the lights went out. There was no panic and an automobile was run to the rear door and the headlights turned on to light the stage.

When lights came on again play was resumed.

EIGHT-PLAYER BASEBALL DEAL

St. Louis Cardinals today announced an eight-player deal with New York Giants involving two of top infielders in National League Alvin Dark, left, and Red Schoendienst. In addition to Schoendienst the Cards sent rookie outfielder Jackie Brandt, catcher Bill Sarni and pitcher Dick Littlefield to the Giants for Dark, first baseman-outfielder Whitey Lockman, catcher Ray Katt and pitcher Don Liddle. There was no cash involved in the deal.

Mebbe we ought t' hev a six-day week fer argymints against th' six-day week.

Many a TV watcher thought he blew a tube, when all th' time it wuz th' power commission that blew their big one.

Lot o' folks complained about 50 minutes o' blackout. Wonder how they'd react t' a few weeks or months of it if an atomic bomb did the job?

Muir Fails 7th Try; Will Await Mass Swim

Saanich surveyor Bill Muir's seventh attempt to buck the Strait of Juan de Fuca ended in failure at 3.30 p.m. Wednesday after five hours and four minutes in the water.

LAUGHREN IN NEW BID JUNE 23

Victoria's swimming chef, 270-pound Ben Laughren, will make his fifth attempt to conquer the Strait of Juan de Fuca Saturday, June 23, starting at 3.30 a.m. from the Chinese Cemetery.

His last bid, on Monday, he was in the water eight hours and 40 minutes and was defeated by the severe rip tides, plus a sore arm, at Race Rocks.

Judge Would Hang Witness

REGINA (CP) — An appeal court judge said Wednesday that the only person he would hang on the evidence of the chief crown witness, against convicted murderer Jacob Dyck would be the witness himself.

Mr. Justice P. H. Gordon said as the court heard the appeal of Dyck against his conviction that he would not believe any of the evidence of Elizabeth Tootsie La Fleche.

Dyck was tried three times for the murder of 74-year-old Mike Todor, who was slain Jan. 1, 1954. His body lay sealed in his own room for 16 months before police found it.

After the latest trial, Dyck was sentenced to be hanged July 24.

As the appeal court judges heard Dyck's appeal Wednesday, they commented and asked questions freely.

Mr. Justice A. T. Procter said that the woman took a secret oath (to tell anything but the truth) at the preliminary hearing and the first trial.

"She lied to escape some penalty she was afraid of if she told the truth," he said. "Now what lie was that?"

He said one objection he had to the charge by the trial judge, Mr. Justice A. Doiron, was that he failed to mention La Fleche was "an unmitigated liar. She was not only that, but a drug addict, alcoholic thief, self-confessed perjurer and bigamist."

The judges repeatedly expressed doubt that the evidence showed that Dyck was the only one who could have committed the crime.

Presbyterian 1957 Assembly At Vancouver

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Presbyterians Wednesday selected Vancouver as the site of next year's general assembly. Delegates to the church's 82nd general assembly voted overwhelmingly in favor of meeting in Kerrisdale Presbyterian Church, Vancouver, next June.

The invitation was extended by Rev. Harry Lennox, rector of the church.

The assembly heard Rev. Eoin Mackay of Saskatoon present a report on the mission and state of the Presbyterian church.

"We can have a sense of reasonable satisfaction over the state of the church," said Mr. Mackay.

"Basically it is in good health and health. But as we look at it we cannot say that it gives the appearance of a church that is really on fire."

"We are not making the impact on the life of our nation that we could make. Our mission must be to push on and show our people that we really mean business," he said.

The execution was set originally for July 10, but their appeal does not open until Sept. 17, prosecutor William A. Schultz told the trial judge when he asked for postponement of the hanging.

Communists Lost Ground In Dutch Vote

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Another Labor-Catholic coalition government headed by Socialist Premier Willem Drees appeared in prospect for The Netherlands today after the election of a new Lower House of Parliament.

Both dominant political groups—the Dutch Labor party and the Catholic People's party—gained ground.

The Communists were the biggest losers, dropping from six to four seats in the 100-member chamber. Right-wing parties also lost seats.

The Labor party gained four seats, boosting its total to 34. This was considered a big victory under the Dutch system of proportional representation.

Tax Administration Draws Criticism

(From Times News Services)

Administration of Canada's tax laws by the national revenue department was the chief item on the agenda Wednesday.

With members drifting away rapidly to fight the provincial elections scheduled for next week in New Brunswick, Quebec and Saskatchewan, only a rear-guard remained to carry on the work of the session. A heat wave added to the desultory kind of debate that marked sittings earlier this week.

Revenue Minister J. J. McCann, asking parliament for about $25 million to carry on the work of his tax and customs collecting departments, was scheduled to reply today to opposition complaints that tax collectors regard everyone behind in tax payments with extreme suspicion.

Chief Critics

J. W. Monteith (PC, Perth), F. S. Zaplatny (CCF, Dauphin), and Ross Thatcher (Ind., Moose Jaw-Lake Centre), were the chief critics. They also complained that the tax department was taxing capital gains although they were not taxable under existing law, applying the tax laws too stringently on farmers in western Canada, and allowing big corporations exemptions from taxes on entertainment expenses and political campaign contributions.

McCann's appropriations were approved earlier by a House committee. The committee study meant that the House was able to get into the debate on McCann's department quickly, without the usual long general debate at the start.

But Monteith and other opposition members complained that the appropriations committee was prevented from calling witnesses from outside the government service. Monteith said the Canadian Tax Foundation should have been invited to submit a brief, but the idea was voted down by the government supporters in the committee.

As a result, Monteith said, Parliament was denied the advice of organizations outside Parliament and the government service, who might have been able to present members with a fresh viewpoint.

Through 'Back Door'

Thatcher charged capital gains taxation is being brought in through "the back door." He said there is a growing fear in Canada that capital gains taxation is coming into effect, not by act of Parliament, but by the interpretation of the revenue department gives to the law.

The government should insert in the Income Tax Act a clear-cut definition of capital gains so there would be no possibility of misinterpretation.

Mr. Thatcher said that despite Finance Minister Harris' assurance some time ago that it is the government's policy to leave capital gains untaxed, it appeared officers of the revenue department did not know about it. The assessors had been interpreting the law in such a way that it might lead eventually to a tax on profits on real estate, stocks and mortgage dealings. Contributions to political parties by huge corporations

Conservatives Ignore Mr. Speaker's Party

OTTAWA — Progressive Conservative Members of Parliament did not attend a reception given by Mr. Speaker Rene Beaudin in his chambers Wednesday for Prime Minister Holland of New Zealand.

Liberal and Social Credit MPs, together with a few CCF members, attended but the Conservatives remained at their desks in the Commons or in their offices.

Last week Opposition Leader George Drew moved a motion of censure against Mr. Speaker. It was voted down by the Liberal majority with support of the Social Credit. The CCF voted with the Conservatives against Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Drew said he did not attend Mr. Speaker's reception

Wednesday because he was concerned with income legislation before the House during the period Mr. Speaker was acting as host from 5 o'clock to 6 o'clock. Other Conservative members said they had duties in the House or elsewhere which made it impossible to attend the reception.

Mr. Drew said he looked forward to attending a reception in honor of Mr. Holland which will be given by the New Zealand High Commissioner T. C. A. Hislop this evening.

The New Strategy

THE MERRY-GO-ROUND OF politics, now in rapid motion, has suddenly altered the calculations of all national parties and in particular the strategy of the British Columbia Government.

Until a few months ago Premier Bennett apparently intended to fight the national Government on the proposition that it had mistreated British Columbia in the field of taxation.

The charge that Ottawa had cut this province off at the pockets in order to subsidize its friends in Quebec—a charge mathematically absurd—was dropped without explanation. The fierce taxation dispute of last winter is forgotten. The Federal Government seems to have devised a policy generally acceptable throughout the country.

Mr. Bennett also has ceased to attack the Federal Government for its policy on electrical power. Abandoning its earlier position, he is wisely seeking agreement with Ottawa on the future of the Columbia River.

But for the national strategy of Social Credit, Mr. Bennett still needs a clear issue against the Federal Government. He cannot lead the promised march on Ottawa—now beginning in Saskatchewan—without a policy and a quarrel of some sort.

The other opposition parties, the Conservatives and Socialists, found such a policy and quarrel in the pipeline debate where these traditional enemies came together in opposing the Federal Government and finally proposing state ownership of gas. Social Credit, however, warmly supported the Liberal policy of lending money to a private pipeline company.

Thus three possible issues—taxation, electric power and gas—have been dropped by Mr. Bennett. He has now turned instead to the issue of monetary policy.

By a process of arithmetic baffling to economists, he says that the Federal Government's attempt to tighten up credit will produce inflation. He demands a policy of cheaper interest rates and looser credit which cannot fail to be inflationary.

This is a bogus issue but it seems to be the only issue Mr. Bennett can find for his national campaign. It is an issue on which the Federal Government should not, and in honesty, cannot yield. As in the case of taxation and electrical power, the Federal Government need not fear the public's reaction when the facts—especially the fact of the inflationary danger—are understood.

Mr. Bennett does not understand those facts himself, or else he is deliberately confusing them for political purposes. The Saskatchewan election this month will provide the first test of his latest strategy.

Water and Safety

THIS IS RED CROSS WATER Safety Week. As a prelude to it, 21 Canadians drowned in various parts of the country last weekend. This is the first time in 1956 that weekend drownings have exceeded highway deaths. That tells its own story of the need for safety education.

Locally the Red Cross has conducted an excellent campaign to bring home to children and their parents the need for caution. Demonstrations which wound up the public school swimming classes in the Crystal Garden impressed some 1,300 Grade 5 students with the importance of avoiding well-known risks on or in the water.

Other means are being used to emphasize to service clubs and public groups particular lessons in safety. The need for that work is urgent.

The swimming season has already begun. More and more small boats are taking relatively inexperienced people out to sea and on smaller bodies of water. Risks are increasing in direct ratio to the number of people enjoying recreation afloat.

All of them should appreciate the fact that there is constant danger in deep water. They should observe at least the simple precautions against disaster. They should know enough to avoid cramps by letting sufficient time elapse between eating and swimming. They should know not to swim alone, no matter how competent they may consider themselves. They should understand the hazards of swimming at night, and, if they are boating or canoeing, they should not only know how to behave in small craft, but also take particular care before venturing out on strange waters.

All accidents cannot be avoided. Most of them can by the use of common sense and education in safety practices.

Good Move on Health

OAK BAY HAS EXPRESSED ITS willingness to join a Union Board of Health under terms that seem reasonable. Saanich, although it has made no specific commitment, appears ready for such a plan.

Since Victoria and Esquimalt are now operating as a combined unit, the formation of a metropolitan health administration seems to lack only arrangement of details and formal ratification.

That is an objective foreseen by health authorities since prewar days. Its realization would be of benefit to the entire community.

A high degree of co-operation has existed for some time between the different municipal agencies on broad matters of health. It has been impossible, however, to achieve under different administrations the coordination which unification could bring.

When the organization is completely integrated certain overlapping services—including duplication of records—will be eliminated. No question will remain over jurisdictional responsibility on the basis of municipal boundaries and the health forces of Greater Victoria will be able to proceed with their important work unimpeded by arbitrarily-fixed lines.

A joining of forces would have the added advantage of permitting specialists to work in particular fields where lack of adequate personnel in the individual units now prevents such a development.

Disease recognizes no boundaries on a civic map. Under the Union Board of Health neither would the forces that fight it.

Road to Oblivion

THE STRANGE CASE OF THE miners of Gwaub-Cae-Curwen places a new problem in the economics text books. It presents a situation not commonly covered either by theoretical or practical students of political economy.

It appears that last month the national coal board of Britain closed the coal mine in this Welsh village, throwing 1,065 miners out of work. The reason for the closure was that low production by the men, and the occurrence of 249 strikes in the last nine years, had made the pit not worth operating.

At first the miners affected unconcern. But as the colliery was the only local industry, and a permanent shutdown meant the end of the village, they asked for a second chance.

The coal board reopened the pit for a one-week trial, with the understanding that the 279 men back on the job would have to produce a certain quota, amount not revealed. The workers missed the quota by "a hairs-breadth" but earned the right to a second week's trial.

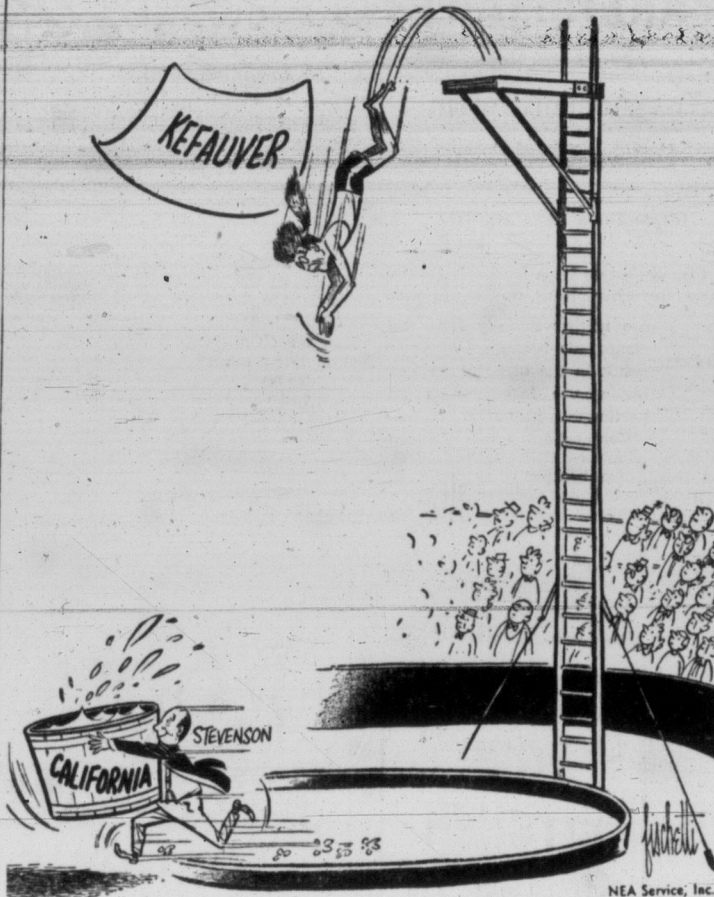

A key fact is that this mine has been producing only 7.4 hundred-weight per man per day, while other mines nearby have established an average of 19 hundredweight.

It would appear that the men of Gwaub-Cae-Curwen have just given up. They are willing to dig only about one-third of other miners' output, even if this means the destruction of their jobs and their community. Nor is this a protest against the heavy-handed work of some unscrupulous private enterpriser, since the British mines have been nationalized.

It may well be that the welfare state has proved too much for this community. If the miners have found that they can make nearly as much by not working as they can by labor—and there are few tougher jobs in the world than that of mining coal—they may have decided to do as little as possible and risk being placed on the permanently unemployed lists.

In any case it appears a poor prospect for the men of Gwaub-Cae-Curwen, and for the children growing up in this environment.

The Old Secret Chemistry

THE nation is now enjoying its first real political crisis since 1926. I say enjoying, because a storm is always enjoyable after a long calm and the great enemy of the democratic process is boredom. Admittedly the recent scenes in Parliament were deplorable but they were human. They showed that Parliament is alive and full of suppressed passions. They awakened a soporific public to its business. They encouraged the Opposition and pricked the complacency of a Government which has never felt the antiseptic touch of trouble and needs to know its own mortality.

The immediate occasion of these excursions and alarms is a gas pipeline, of all things, but the real cause lies deeper, in the curious chemistry of politics, that endless adventure.

A PHYSICAL chemist may calculate the results when he combines certain chemical elements. When the incalculable elements of a nation are poured into the cauldron of a democratic Parliament no one can foresee the results. The laws of that chemistry can never be known since they are as changeable and erratic as the men who make them.

The St. Laurent Government may seem to be serene, unshakable and in control of events, but obviously nothing has happened as it expected, nor as the Opposition expected. The strategy of the pipeline debate was grossly, almost unbelievably bungled by the Government; and now the Opposition is in danger of bungling its chances. The cauldron ferments and bubbles but no one can tell what will come out of it in the end.

SOME weeks ago, when I was in Ottawa, I remarked on this page that our politics were on the verge of upheaval. The climate was so still and balmy then that no one believed me. My friends in politics accused me of being a sensational reporter trying to whoop up a story. Of course the ensuing brawl exceeded my expectations, as it undoubtedly caught the Government completely off its guard.

Now, a long way from Ottawa, I don't pretend to know what is happening behind the deceptive outward scenery, but it seems to me, as a remote observer, that no political party in Parliament has been able, so far, to capitalize on this extraordinary situation, that all have been damaged in the public's estimation. Anyway, that is the simple verdict of a private Gallup poll conducted among my neighbors in the woods. The public, as judged by this minute sample, is baffled but probably not half as excited as the politicians in Ottawa imagine.

IN SUCH a jam Mr. Mackenzie King would have led the Government every inch of the way, dominated the House in public and the Cabinet in private, and somehow, long before this, constructed an issue against the Opposition. Mr. St. Laurent has allowed the Opposition to construct an issue against his Government and, until a few days ago, sat back motionless and silent while events apparently slipped out of his control.

On the other hand, Mr. Drew seems to have fallen for the temptation of easy, quick gains and then suddenly halted on the edge of the election which he had demanded and can have if he really wants it. At the eleventh hour, with the election in sight, he pauses, votes the Government necessary supply and awaits developments as if unsure of himself and the electorate.

THE Government, I would suppose, not knowing anything about it, welcomes this breathing space after its weeks of turmoil and by treating the Opposition oh, so gently, hopes to live down the repulsive incident of closure in the pipeline debate.

If it has finally managed to erect a line of strategy, its obvious course—the course which Mr. King probably would have followed from the beginning—is to give Mr. Drew ample rope to hang the Opposition; to place on him the responsibility for precipitating an election which no one really seems to want; and, at the right moment, to recapture the lost initiative as the defender of orderly government while Mr. Drew is made to appear as a mere obstructionist on the make. If that is the trap prepared for him, Mr. Drew seems to see it and would be blind if he didn't.

BUT it would be quite wrong to imagine that things are turning out as the Government or the Opposition planned. Nothing is turning out as planned.

For a week or two events, not men, were in the saddle at Ottawa as usually happens in a great crisis. Now, at long last, the Prime Minister seems to be regaining control of his Government and Party. Mr. Drew is having sober second thoughts about an election and Parliament has entered a contrived and highly artificial calm unlikely to last long.

In all this bubbling chemistry the unknown element is Mr. Drew. He can force an election by filibustering the supply bill, he can give the Government a perfect excuse for an appeal to the people but he cannot foresee the outcome, though he must see that a Government with a solid Quebec behind a French Canadian Prime Minister will be hard if not impossible to beat.

THEREFORE he pauses on the edge of an election that would finally make or break him. For all his gestures of defiance he has not dared to pull the plug.

At the end of another month, when supply runs out again, he must make up his mind. The crisis was mainly Mr. St. Laurent's in the beginning. Now it is mainly Mr. Drew's.

FROM WASHINGTON By WALTER LIPPMANN

Eisenhower and Dulles

THERE is only one subject of public interest and that is the rate and the character of the President's recovery. On that his doctors alone are qualified to speak, and they have done so not only in reassuring but indeed in enthusiastic terms. Later on, however, after he is out of the hospital and has had time to try himself out, it will be the turn of the President himself to speak. Until then, the country must once again resign itself to a period of uncertainty.

Had the President not been stricken, there would be many subjects of great public interest. One of them is the sharp conflict on neutrality between what the President tried to say in his press conference on Wednesday and what Mr. Dulles said in his speech at Iowa State College on Saturday.

This conflict is all the more surprising in view of the fact that at the press conference the President promised that Mr. Dulles would make it all very clear, "so that we can all understand what it is we are trying to do in waging the peace."

What Mr. Dulles made clear is that he and the President do not think alike, or perhaps we should say that they do not feel alike, on the subject of the nations which refuse to join our military alliances.

Different Question

For the President, who remembers our own history as a neutral in respect to the alliances of Europe, it does not seem immoral, or necessarily unwise, if a nation prefers not to align itself in a military pact. For him, such neutrality does not mean indifference "as between right and wrong, or decency and indecency."

But for Mr. Dulles, who is in one of his sternest and most righteous moods, neutrality among military alliances is "except under very exceptional circumstances . . . an immoral and short-sighted conception."

This is a rather sweeping generalization in view of the fact that in Europe it covers Sweden, Switzerland, Ireland, and not to speak of Austria and Finland; and in Asia it covers India, Burma, Ceylon and Indonesia; that in the Middle East it covers all the Arab states except Iraq; and that if one looks into the facts it would cover a lot of Latin America.

What has brought about the Eisenhower-Dulles muddle is that apparently uncontrollable itch in high quarters to utter resounding generalizations.

Why was it necessary for the President to discuss neutrality in general and abstract terms? Why was it necessary for the Secretary of State to speak on a subject as if from a mountain top?

Do other heads of states and other Foreign Ministers anywhere feel that they must generalize and declare moral judgments about the policies of other governments? Why then must we suffer this recurrent affliction in Washington?

The essence of the problem of neutrality and alliances is that it is the problem of each sovereign state, and that there is no general rule. What is best for some states is not necessarily best for all states.

Sweeping Judgments

The vice of the Dulles position is that it presumes to judge and condemn on general grounds the policy of many states with whom we have no quarrel, who have done us no injury, who have as much right as we have to join or to refuse to join particular alliances. Mr. Dulles should know that his sweeping moral judgments will win him no allies but can alienate many friends.

The occasion for these untimely and dangerous utterances is that certain of the new military alliances—particularly the South-east Asia Treaty and the Baghdad Pact—are causing so much trouble that a reappraisal has become necessary.

The President's friendly remarks on neutrality reflect one aspect of this reappraisal in which he has undoubtedly been participating. Mr. Dulles's harsh remarks reflect another side of the reappraisal. They reflect the fear that if any concessions, like the President's, are made to neutrality, the whole fragile structure of the alliances will crumble.

The crux of the problem is to find ways of reducing the military character of these alliances and of transforming them into agencies of economic co-operation. The Administration has not yet however succeeded in formulating such a solution of the problem.

As Our Readers See It

Mau Mau Story

I have been reading again the story of the settlement of the western United States: of the U.S. cavalry's massacres at Sand Creek; Wounded Knee and other places and of the virtual annihilation of peoples of a different skin. Needless, futile, things of horror—later events have condemned them.

Saturday in Weekend I read of the campaign against the Mau-Mau. This letter is not to protest against the methods of that campaign. My protest is that such an insensitive and inhuman treatment of those methods should appear under the apparent approval of your paper into which Weekend is enfolded once a week.

The young man who wrote the Mau-Mau article should find his proper place in a psychotic ward and not in print. There he could devote even more of his time to the reading of Mickey Spillane, of whom he is an apt disciple.

I think that the callous—and callow—editors of Weekend should be severely rebuked for having inflicted this piece of bestiality upon your readers.

A BOW TO THE BOW-WOWS

By B. A. TOBIN

Can I Go for Canines?

I HATE dogs. Not all dogs, of course. But there are many of "man's best friends" that must have been in the mind of the philosopher who cried, "preserve me from my friends." After all, dogs are much like people.

And who would put in a good word for people in this day and age? Now I know that of all the cities in Canada, Victoria is the last place to try to get support for a canine heresy. Somebody said once that this community buys more dog food per capita than any city in North America. In fact, there are probably more dog lovers here than people lovers—and it could be with very good reason.

I don't expect to be put in the dog house for my sentiments. Even these habitations will in many cases be closed to me. But there may be a reader or two—some mauled postman or delivery boy, perhaps—who will condemn me only reluctantly and not too harshly.

Slanted Report

A lot depends on your point of view, as was demonstrated by the eminent Chinese gentleman who years ago paid his first visit to this hemisphere. As he landed, he was asked by the press what he found most striking about Occidentals. "I think what I find most noticeable," he said with a bland smile, "is the peculiar slant of their eyes."

Those who take a peculiar slant on dogs may well have their reasons.

I remember years ago reading a mystery story—it may have been one of Conan Doyle's—called "The Case of the Howling Dog." I forget how the story came out, but the howling dog has been a mystery to me ever since.

How people in a position to control a howling dog can restrain themselves from doing it is part of the mystery. Perhaps pride of ownership prevents cracking of the sound barrier. But for neighbors, to live near a howling dog is like residing within earshot of Dachau or Buchenwald.

On Guard for Thee

Then, of course, there are the barkers: (a) the distant woofers; and (b) the immediate yappers.

I recall how at one period, when I had a nightly walk home through a sleeping neighborhood, the dogs would pick up my approach—an ever-alert canine DEW line—and pass the warning along from block to block so that my homeward march left every cur within a mile radius roaring its fool head off. It was an unsought recognition. As the fellow said, after being ridden out of town on "a rail," he wouldn't think much of it if it weren't for the honor of the thing.

So much for the distant woofers. The immediate yappers are a different proposition altogether. They are the dogs that rush out from the gate you are passing, scream around you in ever-narrowing circles, rush yipping at your heels and in general act like Santayana's definition of a fanatic—one who redoubles his efforts when he has forgotten his aim.

Once one of these little wretches—emboldened perhaps by the presence of its mistress in the front yard—got close enough to sink its teeth into my ankle. I limped over to the fence, displayed my torn trouser cuff, and asked if this was the height of good neighborliness.

Apparently the good lady misunderstood me. She told me in no uncertain terms that this certainly was not being a good neighbor, that the dog bothered no one else, had never bitten anybody in its life, that I must certainly be to blame, and why did I come by that way anyway?

They're Copy Cats

I realized immediately, then, why the dog was like it was. Dogs, after all, reflect very closely the households in which they live. If children ran the gate to throw stones and scream curses at passersby, the state of the home would be quite obvious.

It is the same with dogs. But to train a dog you have to know more than the dog, and there's the rub.

It will be alleged, of course, that my attitude results from some deficiency of character resulting from an unhappy early experience with dogs. Yet my personal contacts have been most happy. I have enjoyed the acquaintance, and been honored with the friendship, of several notable dogs.

I remember as though it were only yesterday the fat little black-spotted barrel of a puppy on quivering legs that delighted all the youngsters on our street. And the golden collie who with his forepaws on his shoulders stood higher than I, and shared the long-ago summer woods of Sooke with me like a loved brother.

Innocent Victim

In more recent days I have admired the wonderful collie of a neighbor. This dog was a gentleman in every way: quiet, devoted only to his own, always ready for a romp, gentle with children, a good but discriminating watchdog, a proud carrier of parcels, in short, man's best friend at his best.

But man's world proved not too good to him. At an early age he had been badly frightened by firecrackers. As the years grew on him, he was made increasingly nervous by loud bangs. Hallooing was a nightmare to him. Distant rifle shots sent him shivering to the basement.

Although the best of care and affection had always been lavished on him he could not shake his illness. A week of nearby blasting operations made further existence a torment for him, and our neighborhood will not see him again. That is a loss by any standards.

Okay, okay, so maybe I don't hate dogs. But I'm still keeping an open mind on people.

H-Bomb Fall-Out Coats Earth's Grass With Poison

All U.S. Milk Contaminated,
Says British Research Expert

(Editor's Note: In the following dispatch a noted British atomic expert reduces to layman's terms the meaning of the new British Medical Research Council's painstaking study of atomic radiation. He says the reports warn "we had better look out," particularly if H-bombs tests are continued.)

By Dr. J. M. A. LENIHAN
Written for United Press

LONDON (UP) — The British Medical Research Council's long-awaited report on atomic radiation is both reassuring and frightening.

On the H-bomb problem, the doctors, biologists and physicists have answered both yes and no. The H-bomb tests will not produce visible damage in people outside the immediate danger zone.

But the long term picture is very different. The genetic hazards — the effects of radiation on future generations — are not to be taken lightly.

The crux of the report dealt with strontium, that highly radioactive substance blown thousands of feet into the air in an atomic explosion and every day filtering down to coat and poison the earth's surface.

When a modern H-bomb is let off, a great cloud of highly radioactive vapor rises into the stratosphere, about 50,000 feet up. There it condenses to fine dust and is carried by wind and rain until it settles gradually over the earth's surface.

A lot of this cloud is made of short-lived radioactivity which soon decays, but some parts, including radioactive strontium, keep falling for years. This strontium is chemically similar to calcium.

When it falls on the earth, it coats grass and other crops with a fine film of radioactive poison.

Strontium in Babies' Bones

A cow eats the grass and the strontium comes out in her milk. A baby drinks the milk and the strontium settles in his bones. This much has been proved by experiments done at Harwell, Britain's principal atomic laboratory.

All the milk produced in the U.S. must now be contaminated, too. The amount of radioactive strontium on the ground — and in children's bones — will go on increasing, even if no more bombs are dropped, because most of the radioactive dust is still up in the stratosphere and won't come down for 10 years or more.

Every new bomb adds its quota to the poisonous griddle. How much harm does the strontium do? The British committee finds the present concentration to be well below the accepted tolerance level. But it predicts that trouble may start in a few decades, if H-bomb trials continue at their present rate of one or two a year.

One school of thought, including most government sources, maintains that the amount of radiation produced by distant H-bomb trials is very small compared with the accepted tolerance levels and that no one can possibly come to any harm.

The other group maintains that even very small doses of radiation can eventually do damage, by interfering with the genetic make-up of men. It is known, from experiments with insects and small animals, that X-rays will cause mutations. These are changes in the pattern of characteristics handed down from one generation to the next.

Most of these mutations are harmful and they don't become obvious until they are well spread out among the whole population. This may take generations, but by that time the harm will be done and nothing will cure it.

Many scientists, including nearly all the top geneticists, are frankly worried in case the radiation doses given to the population by radioactive debris from H-bomb tests will bring a crop of mutations among our descendants.

'Screwiest Strike' Resumes

BIRKENHEAD, England (CP) — "Britain's screwiest strike" flared up again here Tuesday night after an announcement that a settlement had been reached.

The strike, which lasted from November until April, stemmed from a dispute between metal workers and wood workers over who should drill holes in wood faced with aluminum.

Tuesday, 150 of the wood workers refused to work after sheet metal men had been given the task of joining aluminum sheets on to the wood.

On June 4, agreement was said to have been reached that sheet metal workers—members of the Ship Constructors and Shipwrights Association—would do the disputed work and not joiners belonging to the Amalgamated Society of Woodworkers.

But Tuesday, when the metal men began drilling aluminum sheet onto wood in the Camell Laird yard, about 150 of the joiners refused to work.

Negotiations went on until the evening but no decision was reached.

CONCENTRATION HERE FIVE TIMES NORMAL

Radioactive material released into the atmosphere by the hydrogen bomb explosion over Bikini atoll May 21 has reached Victoria.

"But it's not dangerous," said Dr. William English of the Pacific Naval Laboratory, who detected the material. "The concentration of radioactive material is about five times that usually found in the atmosphere, but it would have to be thousands of times stronger to cause harm."

The test was made by filtering rain water, then testing the resulting residue with a Geiger counter. "We did it just out of curiosity, and just to know what was going on," Dr. English said. "Simple equipment was available here, so we used it."

Last fall Dr. English and other scientists found radioactive material and deduced it had come from a Russian atomic explosion. The current tests showed a peak of radioactivity here Saturday.

The material filtered from the rain is fine dust resulting from the fission of uranium, Dr. English said.

"Our test had nothing to do with the work of the Pacific Naval Laboratory," he said. "We did it just for our own amusement."

U.S. Dentists Deny X-Ray Is Dangerous

NEW YORK (AP)—Dental authorities Wednesday described as "unfortunate and misleading" a report by the National Academy of Sciences that medical and dental x-rays are a hazard to human life. Dr. Herbert L. Taub, president of the New York State Dental Society, said that with modern dental techniques and equipment, there could be no danger to reproductive organs, as suggested by the report.

He said the report has "caused needless apprehension to hundreds of dental patients"—and that many dentists had reported patients calling to cancel appointments for x-ray examinations of their teeth.

Dr. Samuel S. Wald, associate professor of radiology at New York University college of dentistry, also said that dental x-rays properly made with proper modern apparatus "will have no harmful effects."

The academy of sciences report issued Tuesday in Washington after a year-long study, said radiation from any source — bombs, nuclear research or x-rays is "often harmful" to life.

The district covers B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. Elected secretary-treasurer was Albert Whyte, Victoria accountant.

DOCTORS CONCERNED

From UP and AP

LONDON—The British Medical Research Council's report on atomic radiation, just released here, has expressed concern over the growing use of medical radiology.

The use of x-ray and radioactive isotopes is increasing by 12 per cent in Britain each year, according to the report. It also expressed concern over luminous watch dials, high-powered television tubes and incidental use of x-ray devices as unnecessarily increasing radiation risks.

The report of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences, issued at the same time, said immediate steps should be taken to guard against the danger.

SUGGEST KEEP RECORD

They suggested keeping a "radiological history" of each individual — a continuing record of the amount of exposure to radiation from x-ray pictures, medical treatment, in laboratories or power plants, and from fall-out as the result of bomb tests.

Dr. Warren Weaver, chairman of the academy's genetics committee, said he thinks people are spending unnecessarily too much of the slight tolerance to radiation which nature allows them. He called "stupid" the use of x-ray for fitting shoes and spoke out against x-ray snapshots of infants "just so the mother can see the skeleton of her baby is beautifully formed."

Stressing possible widespread danger to generations yet unborn unless control of radiation is assured, the academy called for these two steps as heretofore precautions:

1. Establishment of a national system for keeping a record of every American's exposure to radiation from any source throughout his whole lifetime.
2. Limiting the amount of man-made radiation reaching people's reproductive organs. The limitation would be on the amount beyond that encountered naturally from cosmic rays

Bowater Corp. Confirms Mersey Paper Purchase

MONTREAL (CP)—Bowater Corporation of North America, Ltd., Wednesday announced an offer to buy the assets of Mersey Paper Co., Ltd., of Liverpool, N.S., has been accepted by the Mersey directors.

The announcement said the Mersey board decided to recommend the offer to shareholders at a meeting called for June 22. No figure regarding the offer was contained in the announcement, which said no changes are contemplated in the management or staff of the Mersey mill.

The offer was made through a new subsidiary wholly owned by Bowater Corporation of North America, which in turn is the holding company in Canada and the United States for the world-wide Bowater organization.

Bowater's offer was to buy the assets, not the shares. It was understood the subsidiary company through which the offer was made is the Scotia Paper Co.

BIGGEST PRODUCER

The corporation's newsprint mills in Corner Brook, Nfld., and Calhoun, Tenn., help make Bowater organization the world's largest producer of newsprint. It also manufactures and markets a variety of other papers and paper products and besides the parent company in Britain, encompasses units in Scandinavia, Ireland, South Africa and Australia.

The Mersey Paper Company operates two newsprint machines and now produces some 140,000 tons annually, said the announcement. Like the output of the Bowater Corner Brook and Tennessee mills, the greater part of this is sold under long-term contracts to publishers in the United States.

The announcement said also that supplies of high-grade pulpwood in Nova Scotia are adequate for considerable expansion in output of newsprint and groundwood pulp.

If the purchase is confirmed by Mersey shareholders, Bowater plans to build a groundwood pulp mill in the Mersey mill area with a capacity of about 100,000 tons annually.

At the annual meeting of shareholders of the parent company in Britain last month Sir Eric Vansittart Bowater said it had been decided to build two new pulp mills, one in Canada.

The other new North American plant will be a sulphate pulp mill near Rockhill, S.C. Controlling interest in Mersey had been held by I. W. Kitham, Montreal financier, who died last year.

Foreign Capital Held Essential To Canada Growth

By FORBES RHODE

Canadian Press Business Editor ST. ANDREWS BY THE SEA, N. B. (CP)—Both foreign investment and investment by the Canadian people themselves are required to finance Canada's growth, J. R. Hughes of Montreal, president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada, said today.

Addressing the association's annual meeting, Mr. Hughes, who is vice-president of Royal Securities Corporation, stated: "Almost every Canadian is well aware of the fact that foreign capital has played a most important role in the development of our country, and that without it, and the know-how that has so frequently accompanied it, our progress in all probability would have been much slower."

"It is also clearly recognized by all forward-looking Canadians that we must continue to depend heavily upon foreign sources for many years to come to meet the tremendous needs for risk capital if we are to develop Canada's vast potential on the scale at present foreseen."

His comments were contained in a text issued to the press before delivery.

Archeologists Find Ancient Greek City

RAGUSA, Sicily (AP)—Sicilian archeologists have brought to light traces of the old Greek city of Casmene, missing for more than 2,000 years. The city was mentioned in annals of the ancient Greek colonization of Sicily but apparently was abandoned during the ascendancy of Rome.

COMINCO STUDYING SLAVE RIVER HYDRO

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—Three engineering crews are surveying the Slave River rapids to determine their power potential, it was learned Wednesday.

The surveys are being carried out by the West Kootenay Power Company of Trail, B.C., a subsidiary of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, Ltd., which has extensive lead-zinc holdings at Pine Point on Great Slave Lake, 560 miles north of Edmonton.

Settlement Predicted In Steel Talks

NEW YORK (UP)—The United Steelworkers today studied contract proposals from the steel industry's "Big Three" that could determine whether the U.S. is hit with a costly steel strike this year.

Top trade sources said the feeling here was that a peaceful settlement would be reached on a new contract for 650,000 steelworkers before the June 30 strike deadline.

The companies—U.S. Bethlehem, and Republic—presented their counter offer to the union's contract demands at an abbreviated negotiating session Wednesday.

Reliable sources said the companies' counter offer called for a package increase approaching 15 cents an hour, including a wage hike and a form of guaranteed annual wage.

David J. McDonald, president of the USW, said the union will study the companies' proposals and then meet with its powerful, 170-man wage and policy committee on Friday morning, a few hours prior to Friday afternoon's resumption of formal negotiations.

Veteran industry officials said the companies had asked for a long-term contract, possibly three to five years.

The union has asked for 22 concessions that add up to 60 cents an hour, the experts calculated. This is the biggest package demand since the union signed its first contract with the steel industry 19 years ago.

Brass Probes Softball Woes

Victoria's troubled senior softball setup was intently scrutinized by the brass from the B.C. Softball Association Wednesday night.

The situation whereby one team withdrew from the senior A league and the teams in the senior B league were without official umpires was the basis of a visit of five members of the association, president Jack Stevens, secretary Bert Smith, treasurer Pop Simons, registrar Angelo Mutis and liaison officer Cec White.

The five executive sat down with both leagues and the umpires' association in an attempt to iron out matters.

First hint of trouble came with the withdrawal of Arrows from the senior A league because of the "discriminatory" officiating of umpire-in-chief Gordie Perkins.

Arrows LEAVE
Arrows stated that either Perkins be banned from umpiring at their games or they would withdraw. Perkins was upheld by the league and Arrows left, leaving the league non-existent with just two teams.

Then the senior B loop decided to use its own umpires after a dispute with the Umpires' Association over game fees.

This final development brought over the executive to look into the matter.

Brought out at Wednesday night's meetings were the facts that the A league wanted to pick its own umpires from the association for games, while the B league would have nothing more to do with the umpires on any terms.

A decision is expected to be in the hands of district supervisor Jim Lackie some time today based on the executive's findings.

Juvenile Softball

MacNutt Grocery edged Lansdowne, 8-7, Wednesday night in a juvenile boys' softball game at Strawberry Vale school grounds. Tom Crowthers, with a home run, and Dave Black, with a triple, led the winners' hitting attack. Black was the winning pitcher.

Timbermen Beat Rocks Fourth Straight Time

Nanaimo 14, Shamrocks 13
By DENNY BOYD

Bobby Allan is somewhat like a time bomb. It isn't the ticking that kills you, it's the boom that follows the ticking.

Allan ticked lugubriously for three periods of Wednesday's Shamrock-Nanaimo lacrosse game at Memorial Arena. In a wide-open game that saw the clubs belt in 23 goals in three periods, Allan picked up only two assists, starvation for a goal gourmet of his ilk.

But suddenly the ticking stopped. With the Shamrocks leading 13-12 in the fourth quarter, Allan suddenly exploded with shattering effect.

First he scored the goal that tied the game for the ninth time. And then, on a picture play, he dealt out a pass to hawk-nosed Don Sherry that enabled the elusive little scooter to score the goal that gave Nanaimo the ultimate 14-13 victory. It was the fourth straight time this season that the run-away Timbermen had sand-bagged the Irish and it gave coach Harry Wipper's club a longish 11-point lead over the defending Canadian champions.

This was a gut-wrenching game from start to finish, the kind of game that wrung out shriek after shriek from the mixed crowd of 3,000 Victoria and Nanaimo fans.

The game crackled with excitement; every play was made under pressure and every goal seemed as if it must stand up as a winner.

The Nanaimo club, short-handed through the absence of Wipper, Arnie Dugan, Lisle Scott and Gogie Stewart, had their golden pants scored off them before they pulled out the win.

How They Worked—But in Vain

The Shamrocks worked in this one as they have not worked all season. They wanted this one so bad they could taste it but the taste was destined to turn sour before the palpitating night was over.

It was a heart-breaker for Don Hamilton. True, the rookie Shamrock goalie missed about three shots that he should have stopped. But Allan, the league's leading scorer, fired 13 shots at Hamilton and young Don threw 12 of them back at the Nanaimo firebrand. All in all, Hamilton stopped 39 of the 53 shots Nanaimo rocketed at him.

Just Don's tough luck that the guy at the other end of the floor was Fred Fulla. But for Fulla, Shamrocks would have scored enough goals to win any two games with a down payment on a third.

Nanaimo burst into a 5-4 lead at the end of the first quarter as both clubs indicated they were emptying their purses for this one.

The furious pace continued in the second quarter but it was not until 13:04 of the period that the Shamrocks were to assume the lead for the first time in the game. With the score tied at 6-6, Bill Bamford squirmed through the packed Nanaimo defence and pinpointed a shot over Fulla's shoulder to give the Irish a half-time lead of 7-6.

The goals came like a swarm of locusts in the third period, with each club scoring five times but still the Shamrocks held a one-goal lead, 12-11.

Allan Was Primed By Now

The spendthrift scoring seemed destined to continue unchecked in the fourth quarter when Derry Davies scored at 27 seconds to tie it at 12-12 but it was another tense 9½ minutes before Al Gill scored the next goal, firing a forehand shot, collecting the rebound and back-handing it in for a 13-12 Shamrock lead.

At about this time, the fuse ran out on Allan.

At 11:04, Joe White jarred the ball loose from Gill and passed up-floor to Davies, who fed a drop-pass to Allan and somehow you just knew that Allan had to score this time. He did, and it was a tied ball game again.

Another minute and a half ticked by and the Rocks still could have done it.

But the Shamrock line on the floor wilted under the pressure; didn't get back quick enough, and before you could say "14-13" Allan had fed a pass to Sherry. Sherry, who could score 100 goals if he played against the Shamrocks all the time, took his fourth shot of the night and scored his fourth goal.

Hollywood's Stars sat on the biggest win streak of the Pacific Coast League season Thursday—10 straight—thanks to a ninth-inning double by pinch-hitter Paul Pettit.

Pettit's hit, scored Joe Duhem, on a single, and gave the Stars a 3-2 victory over San Diego. It also lifted Hollywood from sixth to fourth place.

San Francisco also won in the ninth, driving over three runs for a 6-3 win against second-place Seattle. The Rainiers dropped to three games behind Los Angeles, who downed Portland 7-4 and 2-0.

THE FAT MAN DOES HIS WAR DANCE

Freddy Fulla, the "Fabulous Fat Man" of the Nanaimo Timbermen, goes into his war dance in front of his goal to save a drive from Shamrocks' Peewee Bradshaw during the Intercity Lacrosse League game at Memorial Arena Wednesday night between Nanaimo and Victoria. Freddy was truly fabulous as Nanaimo eked out a 14-13 win over the Irish. Checking Bradshaw is Timberman Larry Giovanno.

JETS TARDY WITH FEE; DROPPED FROM B LOOP

Nanaimo Jets of the Senior "B" Lacrosse League proved to be as unproductive in the cash department as in scoring goals Wednesday night, and were dropped from the four-team circuit.

The Jets, who had lost five straight games, were given until Monday to pay their affiliation fee, but refused to do so and were dropped by league decision Wednesday.

Three clubs are left in the league, all from Victoria. They are Foul Bay, Jokers and Junior Shamrocks.

FARMERS HOST SPOTS

Martin's No Billy But He Fills Bill

Cavorting about at second base tonight at Athletic Park when Farmer Construction takes on Vancouver White Spots in a Northwestern International Baseball League game will be one of Victoria's best amateur glove artists.

He is Ron Martin, whose defensive play at the second-base position this year has been outstanding for the Farmers. Ron, who is no kin to a certain second-baseman of the same name playing for the New York Yankees, is the key player in manager Ed Ash's infield platoon.

His sharp fielding in the hole between first and second and his double-play effectiveness at second base with shortstop Ron Karadimas has helped Farmers' hurriers out of many a tough spot.

Ron also is Farmers' leadoff batter, and usually manages to get on base although not hitting too well yet this season.

MINOR GRADUATE
Ron is a product of Victoria's minor baseball system, and has been playing regular ball for the seniors since 1952. He came originally from Ontario.

Along with Ron will be the regular line-up in the infield and outfield tonight when Farmers clash with White Spots. Pitching will be right-handier Ron Lund, making his last start for Farmers before heading north for Campbell River.

With a win tonight, Farmers can move up to a .500 mark for the first time this season, with three wins and three losses, plus a share of second place with Burnaby and Seattle.

Game time is 8:00.

Solarium Corner

The opposite ends of the fishing calendar are represented on the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association Solarium Derby committee.

Youngest is Garry Hunt, 11 years, while the oldest is Capt. A. C. Cruchley, well-known Victorian, who is in his 70's.

Capt. Cruchley, who is retired now, has been with the VISAA for seven years. He still manages to help out with the derby.

New Faces On Mat Card

A clutch of new faces will be on hand at Memorial Arena tonight at the weekly professional wrestling show.

One of these is Cary Grey of Minneapolis, pretender to the heavyweight crown, who will take on the Red Mask in one half of the double main event. Another one is in the second half of the main, Rama Rajah of Bombay, India, who will take on familiar Leo Numa, while the third is Dave Ruhl of Chicago, who tackles perennial performer Ken Kenneth in the special event.

Action starts at 8:30.

CAPT. CRUCHLEY

There are other and more agile members, however, that keep the derby tickets moving. Tickets are available at $1 apiece, from committee members, boatshops or Victoria sporting goods stores.

All proceeds of the July 22 derby go to the Queen Alexandra Solarium and its work for crippled children.

United Must Stop Airco's Power

Dave Guthrie, who may be the answer to Victoria United's front-line miseries, will take over at centre forward Friday night when United meets powerful North Shore Airco's in a Coast Soccer League match at Athletic Park.

Guthrie was on hand for United's 2-1 loss to Vancouver Halecos and played a promising if wandering game at inside-right. His actions at the inside position prompted coach Willie Hamilton to move him over the centre spot, where he will be most effective.

Hamilton, back again after missing a game because of a recurrent ankle injury, will take over at left half, while George Wright will be at inside-left and Bill McMillan at inside-right.

Outsides will be Tim Walker and Ken Hibbert, while the half-line will be composed of Harold Holroyd and Harry Carruthers along with Hamilton. Bill Hope and Joe Robbins will be the fullbacks in front of Archie McMillan in goal.

TOUGH TEAMS
The powerful Airco's, who have won three games in a row and have scored 15 goals in four games, will be a tough proposition for United.

Their attack is centred around clever Art Hughes at centre-forward, who played for B.C. All-Stars Monday against Aberdeen. Insides will be Denny Rogers and Neil McEachnie, while outsides will be Gordie Iton and Bruce Ashdown.

On the half-line will be Bob Allen, Alf Rutton and Pefe Procter, while fullbacks will be Malcolm McManus and George Beckett. In goal will be former Victorian Joe Travis.

United will be looking for its first win of the summer season Friday, while a victory for Airco's will give them first place. Game time is 8:15.

Booster Buttons Aid Minor League Costs

North Kiwanis Baseball League, in an attempt to defray expenses of minor baseball in Victoria, has put on sale North Kiwanis League booster buttons.

The numbered buttons may be purchased by fans attending games at Athletic Park, and at every game a number will be drawn for a door prize. If the button-holder is present, he wins the prize.

Buttons cost 50c each, with all proceeds going to help minor baseball.

Kowalyk Wins Roper Trophy In Vic High Awards Ceremony

Ed Kowalyk was the surprised winner of the Roper Sportsmanship trophy in the Victoria High School awards day Wednesday.

Kowalyk, a well-known figure in high school sports and a rookie member of the Victoria Shamrocks, received the award for "good sportsmanship, on and off the playing field," while Sheila Clarke and Bob McKee won the Hi-Y sports trophy.

Track and field cups were won by Connie Samson, Jacques Wright, Tom English and Rick Kelsall, who also won an inter-high track award. John Gilliland was presented with the runner-up award.

Winners of other individual cups were: Badminton, Pam Bingham and Norm McLaren; tennis, Pam Bingham and Jerry Devine; swimming, Ruth McAllister and Don Heywood; and cross-country running, Ian Fraser, Norm Hamilton, Nestor Halowski, Bill Williams, Barry Hagen, Peter Jubb, Ken Leong and Lawrence Valiant. Fourth year big block letters were won by Pam Bingham, Carole Salonen, Connie Samson, Robin Farquar, John Gilliland and Waldo Skillings.

Victoria High School, which always seems to produce its share of winning teams, received its share of the trophies also.

After receiving, in quick order, the inter-high soccer cup, the inter-high track cup, and the "junior girls' inter-high basketball cup, Vic High went on to take possession of the Howard Russell Cup for rugby, the Times trophy for the inter-scholastic basketball tournament, the Vancouver Island basketball cup, a fourth place trophy for the B.C. basketball tourney, and the B.C. Cross Country trophy.

House III won the inter-house trophy for house sports within the school.

It was ladies' night at Oak Bay Boat House Wednesday evening.

At least, it was one lady's night. That was Miss Joan Colbert of 1811 Belmont Avenue, who boated a 46½-pound salmon while fishing in "The Gap."

Miss Colbert used a No. 5 Wonder Spoon, 60 feet of line and six ounces of weight to get her whopping strike.

Poor Robin Is Wobblin' In Bid for 20 Wins

WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY

Denny Boyd

Memory being a fickle thing that jilts the past to woo the present, we may be guilty of gross infidelity if we say that this was the most exciting lacrosse game ever at Memorial Arena.

Perhaps we're doing injustice to past rousers, but we can't remember when we have seen a game that packed the nerve-tling intensity of this one in which the Nanaimo Timbermen did our Shamrocks in for the fourth time hand-running.

Even the Arena lights were impressed. They blinked in disbelief several times but the flickering was hardly noticed, such was the excitement below.

There was a great clashing of gears as the two top machines in the Inter-city Lacrosse League collided. Male fans who have sat on their hands in boredom this season, jumped in the aisles and smashed their hats. Women called the referees' names that shocked their husbands.

No less than nine times, this crazy dogfight was tied and every time a player made a move, he knew full-well that the result of the entire game might rest on his actions.

Yes, it was exciting. But excitement doesn't show in the league standings.

Ralph Had Different Idea

And thus, when someone bubbled in the Shamrock dressing room after it was over, "Boyd, that was sure a swell game to watch," Shamrock manager Ralph Baker thundered, "Yeah? Well it was a blank-of-a-blank game to lose."

There was a fellow in the game named Don Ashbee. He is a beetle-browed, scowling chap who seems loaded with an abundance of the qualities that Shamrock rooters hate. This Ashbee person tiffed with Whitey Severson early in the game. When Severson protested the penalty, Ashbee gleefully made the yata-yata sign with his wiggling fingers at Whitey while Shamrock fans screamed for justice.

Later, Ashbee became embroiled with Al Davies, stood behind a referee and dared Davies to come and get him. In the penalty box, Ashbee scowled, largely, exchanged deprecations with Victoria's lacrosse-loving Police Chief and generally disported himself in such a manner that every lacrosse fan present will gladly shell out in future games, just for the privilege of watching and hating Ashbee.

Ashbee, quite seriously, said to a dressing-room visitor after the game, "I am so miserable that even my kids are starting to hate me."

There were referees, too. Their names were Sid Greenwood and Stan Young. They did not do at all well.

Oh Well, It Was Just Blood

For instance, Ed Longpre was cut about the head and his assailant was given a two-minute penalty. Trainer Dusty Mair pointed out the ruddy rivulets of blood coursing down Ed's face and hinted that the rule book calls for a five-minute penalty for the letting of blood. Greenwood looked at the blood, allowed as how it certainly was blood, but refused to call the major penalty. Perhaps it was because Longpre did not bleed hard enough. Who knows?

But later, Longpre cross-checked Larry Giovando smack-dab in the choppers and Young, standing over the play, did not call it. Perhaps he had lost the pea in his whistle. Who knows?

But going back to the Shamrock dressing room, which had the gay, party atmosphere of an undertaker's waiting room, one could see two pretty good lacrosse players commiserating.

There was Ed Kowalyk, a skittish young colt, all arms and legs, who scored two sensational goals, trying to console his buddy, Don Hamilton.

But Don would not be consoled. All he could say was, "That Sherry . . . I don't know how, but he kills me every time . . ."

You could appreciate Hamilton's consternation. In four games this season, Sherry has taken 22 shots on the Victoria nets and scored 17 goals.

MINOR BALL ROUNDUP

Cosmos Cop Lead In Pony League

Cosmopolitans, blanking Victoria Police on one hit, 150, moved into first place in Pony League standings Wednesday night at Carnarvon Park.

Doug Gilmour, Butch Rivers and Dave Webber combined to hold the Police to one safety. Gilmour was the winning pitcher, striking out five batters in the two innings he hurled.

Only two other minor league games were scheduled in the uncertain weather conditions Wednesday night.

In one, Pages bumped Sidney, 14-3, at Athletic Park to move to within two games of first place in the tight North Klamath League race.

ERRORS HURT

Nine errors by Sidney, plus the Pages' nine hits accounted for the comfortable margin. Winning pitcher Tom Hardy turned in a three-hit performance on the mound.

In the other, Outdoor Supermarket scored four runs in the first inning and hung on for a 4-3 win over Island Decorators in a Saanich Babe Ruth League game at Macdonald Park.

The game was called at the end of the fourth inning because of rain.

LADDER DERBY

Seven more fish weighed in Wednesday brought the fourth week total in the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association ladder derby to 22 entries.

Top catch Wednesday was by W. Williams, who hauled in a 16-pound four-ounce spring near Willis Point to take over second spot on the ladder.

Ladder standings follow:

1-Douglas Hobbs	25.07
2-W. Williams	18.94
3-W. J. Davis	14.65

NORWAY DEFEATED, 3-1

OSLO, Norway (Reuters)—West Germany, the World Cup holders, beat Norway 3-1 in an international soccer match here Wednesday. They were tied 1-1 at half time.

Ben, Cary Favorites For Open

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UP)—The country's best shot-makers teed off today for the first round of the National Open Golf Tournament with Ben Hogan and Cary Middlecoff, two of the six former champions in the field, listed as favorites.

Hogan, seeking an unprecedented fifth victory, and Middlecoff were quoted at 3 to 1. Right back of them came Sam Snead, four times runner-up in the Open, but never a winner, at 4 to 1, and Gene Littler, the California pro who appears to be at the top of his game, at 5 to 1. Masters champion Jackie Burke was held at 6 to 1.

Estimates of the score it would take to win ranged from even par 280 for the four rounds to 287. Most of the golfers agreed that the 6,902-yard sun-baked Oak Hill Country Club layout was one of the fairest tests of golf on which the Open ever has been played.

GREENS TOUGH

But with the hot weather the greens become lightning fast and a lot of golfers anticipated putting trouble. However, they liked the short cut rough and the way they could recover from wild tee shots.

Middlecoff, playing "very well," thought 281 would win it. Hogan predicted it might take 280. Burke said he would settle for 284.

"I don't think anyone will break that figure," the Masters titleholder said.

Middlecoff figured "a hot golfer" could run away with it "maybe six or seven strokes."

"Anyone of a number of players could win it if they start out with hot rounds," Middlecoff reasoned, "for this is a course where the leader doesn't have to play safe. He can go all out from the tees, and even if he's wild he still has a fighting chance for a birdie on most of the holes."

Joey Wants Title Fight

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UP)—Jolted Joey Giambra, who displayed new aggressiveness while beating England's Johnny Sullivan again on television Wednesday night, asked today for a "springboard" to the middle-weight crown.

"Get me Gene Fullimer or Tiger Jones or any top man who can bounce me toward a title fight," he told promoter Norman Rothschild.

Giambra, the dark-haired sharpshooter from Buffalo, N.Y., said his second straight unanimous decision over ex-British champion Sullivan at War Memorial Auditorium should complete their Anglo-American competition.

"I've changed my style of fighting, and I'm ready to shoot for the top," said 24-year-old Joey, who shuffled forward in every round, much to the surprise of the 1,529 fans.

Red Smith Likens Chivalo to Floyd

NEW YORK (AP)—Red Smith, sports columnist for the New York Herald Tribune, says 18-year-old George Chivalo of Toronto "looked better in his first pro fight than Floyd Patterson did in his three years ago."

Smith, writing his column from Toronto, watched Chivalo beat South African heavyweight champion Johnny Arthur at Maple Leaf Gardens Tuesday night.

"All things considered, he looked like a fine prospect," Smith writes of Chivalo, whose eight-round decision over Arthur was his first fight since he won an amateur tournament staged by Jack Dempsey two months ago.

Keep Your Eye On the Ball

A golfer hits a bad shot and he turns to somebody and wants to know what he did wrong. "Looked up," somebody will mutter, sagely.

This is one of those interesting little golf fables which seems to have lasted through the years. Unless you actually try, looking up is next to impossible during the swing. The old—"Keep your eye on the ball"—is worthless advice.

What happens when a golfer looks up is that he pulled back. The head may move back and forth during the swing, but never up and down.

Before you hit the ball, I defy you to take your eye off it.

After you hit it, what difference does it make where you look? I said in my book, "The Natural Way to Golf" (Harcourt House), that you should look up. The only thrill in golf is watching where the ball goes.

By moving your head up and down you ruin the whole purpose of the address, which is to measure your distance from the ball.

NEXT: Address over stance.

(BB) "THE REVOLT OF MAMIE STOVER" (Odeon)

Although it is never clearly defined how Mamie Stover (Jane Russell) earned so much money at the dance hall, only the naive could believe it came from her percentage of dance tickets and drinks. To the boys in uniform at Honolulu, in pre and post-Pearl Harbor days, "Flaming Mamie" was more comforting than a letter from home. Unfortunately for both, Mamie meets newspaperman-novelist Richard Egan and they fall in love. It doesn't take long for him to discover, however, that Mamie doesn't care any more for a nickel than she does for her good right arm. Mamie has ambitions. She wants to make enough dough to return to her home town, Lessburg, Miss., and make everyone who looked down on her before look up.

AFTER THE JAPANESE bomb the U.S. fleet Egan joins up and promises to come back with a wedding ring. However, he makes one condition—that Mamie give up her life at the dance hall. Poor Mamie, meaning well, falters after dance hall owner Agnes Moorehead promises her a bigger slice of the melon. Wounded in the Pacific jungles, Egan hears the boys talking about "Flaming Mamie" in a way no fiancee cares to hear his light-of-love discussed. When he gets back to Honolulu he calls the whole thing off and goes back to the girl he should never have left in the first place, country-clubber Joan Leslie. The roles are nicely played by all and the lamentations and recriminations are kept to a polite, believable level by director Raoul Walsh. The colored cinematography, especially of the Japanese attack, is excellent.

Kaiser Offer To Dockers Proves Hoax

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Bernard Dicker, dismissed chairman of an industrial combine, said Wednesday he had received a cable from the United States offering him a job on his own salary terms—but it appeared that the cable was a hoax. The cable, he said, was signed "Henry J. Kaiser." However, in Oakland, California, Edgar Kaiser, president of the vast Kaiser enterprises, denied outright that his father had made an offer. "I have never heard of the man and neither has my father," Kaiser said.

Dicker said the cable bearing Kaiser's name said: "Horrid to learn of your ouster, but waste no time. I need you here to ramp my auto interests. Name your own salary and expenses. No deal without the lady. Letter follows."

Frank Trumbauer Dies

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Frank Trumbauer, 55, once considered one of jazzdom's outstanding saxophonists, collapsed and died in a hospital door Monday night. Trumbauer achieved fame during nine years with the Paul Whiteman orchestra, which he joined in 1927. He was featured in the Carnegie Hall concert the Whiteman orchestra gave in that period. Trumbauer also played with Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw, Jimmy Dorsey, Tommy Dorsey, Jack Teagarden, Bix Beiderbecke and other leading jazz musicians.

Mr. Lew MacDonald of MACDONALD'S LIMITED, Fort Street, Victoria, says:

"Looking back over our 25 years of serving Victoria and area, we feel a justifiable pride in the confidence we have won from our customers and business associates. Stretch Muscles, Drink Coffee To Beat Off 'Highway Hypnosis'

Police Chief John Blackstock warned drivers today against "highway hypnosis."

Motorists who will be making long holiday trips are advised to stop frequently to stretch their muscles and drink coffee.

"Highway hypnosis is one of the greatest menaces to drivers," the chief said. "It's caused by monotony and fatigue from watching the white dividing line on highways for mile after mile. The driver becomes drowsy and only too easily winds up in a ditch."

He listed the following ways of beating hypnosis:

1. Keep plenty of fresh air in the car.
2. Engage in conversation or listen to the radio.
3. Stop every 100 miles, have a snack or cup of coffee and walk around.

A friend who saw how I was suffering suggested that I try Templeton's T-R-C's. T-R-C's gave me quick and satisfactory relief. You can believe me that I would hate to wake up some morning without suffering from lumbago, sciatica, rheumatic or arthritic pain should give Templeton's T-R-C's a fair trial!" Slacks, Slim Jims, Sweaters Dress of the Day for Boating

(With hundreds of Victorians anticipating a summer season that revolves around their summer cruises and yacht club affairs, Nona Damaske, Times fashion editor, took to sea to learn what the ladies are wearing for a weekend afloat.)

She chose styles that proved both practical and smart for her report.

When I was asked to do an article on fashions for feminine Victoria boating enthusiasts I said "yes" quickly. Frankly, I was flattered. . . I always walk through the busy editorial room with the feeling that the assembled males really couldn't care less about next season's fashion forecast. Once in a great while one of the boys will look up from a littered desk and ask, "What is Dior going to do with the waistline now?" With a smile and a quip about his tie being a perfect horror, I take the teasing in my stride.

Now, however, I felt faced with a problem.

Although I knew what the shops were showing for cruise-wear I did not know firsthand what the gals really liked for their weekend excursions. However, I was fortunate enough to receive an invitation for a Capital City Yacht Club cruise to Genoa Bay.

We left Canoe Cove on a Saturday about 2 p.m. and as it was cool and damp all the girls were wearing warm slacks and sweaters. Tailored tartan slacks and smart corduroy slim-jims were combined with heavy knit sweaters for an hours' cruise, which was beautiful despite the dull weather.

After saluting the commodore we tied up at the jetty, and as it was raining fairly hard I thought there would be little activity until time for dinner at Genoa Bay Lodge, but I couldn't have been more mistaken. Little plastic raincoats, fisherman's slickers and smart hooded parkas were donned and friends visited as the boats came in one by one.

GAY COTTONS

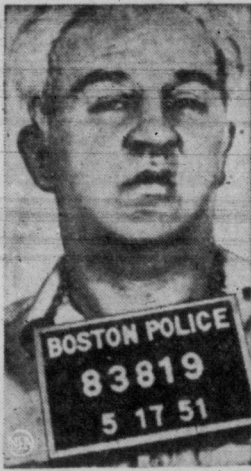

Later the rain stopped and every one changed for dinner and dancing. To the gay strains of Andy Anderson's music the gals in gay cottons and the fellas in blue blazers really had a ball. Such a colorful assortment of summer dresses . . . prints

Sunday blossomed forth sunny and hot and everyone took full advantage of the heat to have a swim in the pool or a sun bath on the deck. The favorite rig of the day would be hard to choose as some gals wore shorts, some pedal pushers, some cool linen slacks and several who had been to Hawaii were wearing Poi Pounders.

The dress for the whole weekend was pleasantly casual and the amazing thing is how everyone looked so slick and fresh when actually there is very little space to spare aboard most of the craft.

I did try to concentrate on yachting fashions but secretly I was more fascinated by the boats . . . such spit and polish . . . such interesting names . . . such stylish paint jobs and trim lines . . . maybe that is why they are referred to in the feminine gender.

SLAIN—Ex-convict William F. Cameron was found shot to death in his automobile in Boston. Police believe Cameron may have been killed to stop him from testifying in the coming Brinks trial.

'Living Nightmare' Says Woman Who Bore Son Fathered by Rapist

DENVER (UP)—A Methodist mother vowed today to forget the "living nightmare" of the birth of her son, fathered by a rapist.

Mrs. Joe Anson, 27, was raped by a young airman in her apartment last Sept. 16. Her baby which was born Tuesday was immediately given to adoption authorities.

Neither she nor her unemployed, sick husband saw the infant.

"This nine months has been a living nightmare for both myself and my husband," Mrs. Anson said. "I've felt the baby stirring in my body and then I'm reminded of that terrible night."

She said she never could have loved the rapist's child and only wants to forget. She said they may move from Denver to help bury the memory of the last nine months.

The baby's father, John D.

Peters, 18, a phlegmatic, hulking youth who admitted attacks on Mrs. Anson and several other Denver women, probably will never see his son, either. He is serving a sentence of 40 to 80 years in the Colorado penitentiary.

Quackery Stems From Tribal Awe Of Witch Doctor, Says Dr. Grant

"The fresh flowering of the anti-scientific attitude and the extolling of the merits of quackery" in British Columbia were given clinical analysis by Victoria surgeon Dr. Gordon H. Grant in an address to the Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel today.

Speaking on the subject "The Doctor's Role in a Changing Society," Dr. Grant said: "Quackery is an old and recurrent phenomenon: it probably stems from the tribal memory and awe of the tribal witch doctor.

"It may seem astonishing that quite a number of people prefer to scientific medicine but you will be quite aware that this is so.

"It is hard to be philosophical about this when we see a sufferer from incurable disease heartlessly victimized by a quack, when a child is denied proper treatment or when research . . . is held up by anti-scientific crusades.

MAKE MARTYRS

"Human nature being what it is, if we ourselves pursue the matter with too much vigor we easily end up in the strange posture of having strengthened the hand of the charlatan by having made a martyr of him."

In a wide-ranging survey of current medical and sociological problems, Dr. Grant quoted the late Albert Einstein as saying that the three most serious concerns of present-day society were juvenile delinquency, alcoholism and "the progressive lowering of the subterranean water table."

To these, the speaker added, "the dilemma of our aged (which) takes on a special dimension in Victoria."

Many of our people are victims of the depression, monetarily and psychologically. Many were quarantined from useful activity and the chance to save money.

BITTER DISCOVERY

"Many in coming to Victoria, far from their origins, have made another bitter discovery. They come here in search of a mild climate and they find it. They leave behind them 'the climate of companionship'."

"May I be so heretical as to suggest that we do what we can to discourage the migration to these coastal communities of old people with very limited means?"

"They move far from where they spent their lives, where they were people of some importance. When they come here they are too old to make new friends, too old to learn new ways.

LONELINESS

"If one of a couple dies soon after arrival the survivor must be faced with the most hideous loneliness.

"We can help the pain of arthritis today with cortisone; we can control the rickety heart and we can often get rid of the cancer that would have doomed them just a few years ago.

"But as we do these things we are uneasily aware that we are keeping many of our patients alive to suffer the real ailments of old age: boredom, loneliness and insecurity."

On the subject of pensions, Dr. Grant made a plea for the active oldster who wanted to "get about and make a contribution." Withholding of an amount equal to what he earns was nothing less than "a penalty on ambition and a reward for idleness."

One of the most encouraging trends of recent years, the speaker said, was the lively interest in adult education which "keeps alive the fires of curiosity and imagination."

"The patient has been ill before," Dr. Grant concluded, "and has astonished everyone by making an improbable recovery. He ought to get well this time, and he will if the treatment is appropriate, energetic and, above all, persistent."

Tom Bradbury presided over the luncheon. He steps down at the annual Rotary installation dinner June 23, to be succeeded by E. Verne Davidson.

Slavery Raising Its Head in City

Slavery soon may raise its head in Victoria.

If it does, the swim committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be responsible. Jaycees will study the possibility of "auctioning" business men who will voluntarily offer to work for a specified time for the highest bidder.

Idea is to swell the coffers of the chamber's mass-swim fund, aimed at a minimum of $10,000.

The suggestion will be studied at the next meeting of the chamber's swim group, co-chairman Neil Neufeld said today.

The idea was tried recently in Hamilton, Ontario, to raise funds for the Marshall Memorial United Church there. It was eminently successful, with a scientist "auctioned" for $22

First Poisonings From Laburnum

First cases of laburnum seed poisoning this year were reported by Royal Jubilee Hospital today.

An undisclosed number of small children have had stomach pump treatment in hospital emergency. Their names were not released.

As yet, no cases have been reported by St. Joseph's Hospital.

The laburnum, an ornamental tree widely grown in the Greater Victoria area, bears seed pods at this time of year resembling garden peas, for which they are mistaken and eaten by children.

Pods, now in early stage of development, later turn black but remain highly toxic although less attractive to children.

The danger season normally lasts about two months.

BETWEEN TIMES

By

MONTE ROBERTS

Where were you when the lights went out, or, lost in the bathtub without a candle.

But don't complain. You could have been balanced on a teetering chair which was balanced on a tottery table, trying to open a trap door to the attic.

I was. I will be up and around again soon, thanks.

A preliminary survey indicates that 5,347 wives said to 5,347 husbands, when the lights went out, "Are you SURE you paid the electric bill?"

Of the 5,347 husbands, 5,346 weren't sure.

The other one was sure. He was sure he hadn't.

There were several advantages to the black-out. Many cases of TV-eyes were aided by the enforced rest; our refrigerator needed defrosting, and we can all look forward to smaller light bills this month.

However, to turn to the brighter side, did you hear about the pigeon who took part in the Bill Muir swim yesterday?

This pigeon turned up at Fishermen's Wharf promptly at 8:30 a.m., and went aboard CKDA's Chatham Chief, the radio and press boat.

He stayed aboard the boat for the duration of the swim, hopping from shoulder to head of various parties. The pigeon was a friendly type, but silent. Didn't utter so much as a single coo.

Reporters figured he was a carrier pigeon, standing by to fly messages ashore in case the electronic means of communication broke down.

However, as his services were not needed, he turned out to be a mere passenger pigeon.

When the boat docked, he flew away about his business.

A thing which has been puzzling me is this. Who is the vice-president in charge of making the manhole covers on Government street higher than street level?

You cannot convince me they got that way accidentally. It must be part of an overall plan, to keep motorists on the alert.

Driving from the roundabout to Johnson street along government presents an obstacle course worthy of the toughest road test.

I heard a definition yesterday I like. Mess—two gallons of treacle in a one-gallon tin.

Dan Moses Of RCMP Dies at 53

The late Dan Moses in his rowing days.

Inspector Daniel David Moses—"Dan"—to associates in the RCMP and a legion of friends in Victoria's sports world—died in Veterans' Hospital this morning after a three-month illness. He was in his 53rd year.

Dan Moses was one of the greatest of a long line of Victoria oarsmen. For many years captain of the James Bay Athletic Association, he rowed in shells which captured the senior doubles and senior fours championship of the North Pacific Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

Dan was also an enthusiastic and skilled English rugby player during his athletic days. As recently as 1955, he coached JBAA oarsmen.

VICTORIA-BORN

He entered police work with the B.C. Provincial Police, transferred to the RCMP when the federal group took over duties of the provincial organization. He was born in Victoria.

Inspector Moses was past-master of Vancouver-Quadra Lodge No. 2, A.F. & A.M., and a member of the Scottish Rite.

His RCMP associates will give him a military funeral Saturday. The cortege will leave Hayward's B.C. Funeral chapel at 2 p.m. and proceed to Holy Trinity Church, Patricia Bay. Services will be conducted by Rev. Roy Melville at 3 p.m., and interment will be in the churchyard cemetery.

He is survived by his wife, Madge, 324 Dallas; one daughter, Mrs. Howard (Loree) Gillard, Nanaimo; two sisters, Grace Evelyn, North Saanich, and Mrs. Irene Fredette, 331 Michigan.

George Kelsey, 68, Dies in Hoquiam

George Kelsey of Hoquiam, Wash., who is well known in this city, died at his home in Hoquiam Monday. He was 68 years old.

Born in England, Mr. Kelsey retired from the Hoquiam post office four years ago. He and his wife, Lily, have been regular visitors to Victoria for the past 25 years.

Conway Parrott President Of Community Welfare Body

Co-ordination of public services to the needy aged through a central office was urged by Capt. D. J. Parrott at a meeting of Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria Wednesday night.

In his report on a year's study of the problems of the aged, he suggested hiring of one full-time worker and stenographic help to:

1. Compile information on available services to old people.
2. Accept referrals of old persons needing service and to refer them to the proper service.
3. Assist in organizing volunteer groups.
4. Develop public relations and public information on current projects, including housing, home visiting and nursing, housekeeper service and other aids.

EXPERIMENT

He recommended that the centre be set up on an experimental basis for six months under auspices of a private social agency. Welfare council, mainly through Community Chest, and the private agency should bear costs, he said.

The council elected Conway Parrott, president, and Hector Alexander, vice-president. Honorary treasurer is Roy Hanley, recreation convener, Glen Hamilton and medical-social convener, William Hooson.

Fraud Accusation In Sale Of Auto Court

Claiming fraudulent misrepresentation, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Hynd, resort operators, asked Mr. Justice J. J. Sullivan in Supreme Court today to rescind a $27,500 contract for the purchase of the Seaview Auto Courts at Qualicum Beach.

The plaintiffs in their suit, against Wilson Cameron McFeely and Elizabeth McFeely of Lasqueti Island, also are asking for $3,427 damages for losses and expenses incurred in the sale transactions.

They claimed the defendants through their agents, Pemberton Holmes Ltd. of Victoria, induced them to buy the property by telling them that a boat basin could be constructed in front of the property and that a navigable channel existed to the shore. These representations, they claimed, proved to be false.

In addition, they alleged the defendants told them the roofs of the cabins did not leak and were in good condition.

In a counter-suit, the defendants deny the plaintiffs' allegations and are asking the court for foreclosure proceedings on the grounds that Mr. and Mrs. Hynds have failed to continue their payments for the property.

Yarrows Submits Highest Bid On Storage Tanks

Yarrows Ltd. of Victoria has submitted a tender of $424,956 for the manufacture and supply of seven fuel storage tanks for the B.C. Power Commission's new thermal plant at Bare Point, Chemainus.

Other tenders are those of the Dominion Bridge Co., Vancouver, $397,000; Western Bridge and Steel Fabricators, $379,620; and Horton Steel Ltd., Calgary, $320,000.

The new thermal plant, to be constructed at a cost of $13,300,000, will be equipped with 100,000 horse power gas generators.

The B.C. Power Commission has invited tenders for the supply of about 280,000 pounds of galvanized steel for the 138,000-volt transmission lines to Chemainus generating station and the Crofton sub-station.

Tenders will be opened in public at the commission's offices, 780 Blanshard, Victoria, at 2 p.m., June 28.

$2,100 Clothing Theft at Naden

Esquimalt police are investigating the theft Tuesday night of $2,100 worth of civilian and navy clothing stolen from Murdoch-Girard tailor shop at HMCS Naden, Nelles block.

The shop is operated by the Victoria firm as a convenience to naval personnel and is located in the main barracks building.

Toronto Marathoners To Try Narrow Part Of Strait For Swim

Not Trying Usual Route

The "secret course" planned for Ted Simmons' attempt on Juan de Fuca Strait is from Sheringham Point, 18 miles west of Race Rocks, to the U.S. shore near Port Angeles, an informed source said today.

Steve Mellors, coach of the Simmons swim team, is keeping the exact course secret until just prior to takeoff time.

He was to meet this afternoon with John E. Scott, meteorologist from Ottawa; Jack Russell, navigator for Marilyn Bell, and Alf Webb, Victoria fisherman, who will drive the escort craft.

Bill Muir, defeated in his seventh attempt Wednesday, said today: "If the reported course is the one he's going to take, I wouldn't call that a Strait crossing at all."

"I could swim it any day," he said. "In the old days, Indians used to ferry cattle across there on rafts that drifted with the tide."

If weather conditions appear right, the swim attempt will start at 4 a.m. Friday.

Shortest distance across the Strait from Sheringham Point is about 16 miles, but the swim will likely cover a direct line of about 20 miles, to a point near Port Angeles, the source said.

FROM VICTORIA

All other attempts—45 including Bill Muir's failure Wednesday—have been made from within the boundaries of Esquimalt or Victoria, on the north side, or from Ediz Hook at Port Angeles, Bert Thomas' successful swim was from the Hook to Macaulay Point, Esquimalt.

Simmons' swim is sponsored by Bee Hive Corn Syrup. If his attempt is successful, Coach Mellors will enter him in the Lake Ontario swim this fall, and then make an English Channel try.

A staff tea honoring the retirement of Miss Ella Cameron as head of the mathematics department, Victoria High School, will be given at the Oak Bay Hotel, Tuesday, June 26.

Miss Cameron has taught at the school for 29 years.

Her former students will back me up in saying that she is one of the finest math teachers in the province," principal Harry Dee said today. "They all speak of her in glowing terms, although she is known as a teacher who demands—and gets—the best of work from her classes."

Miss Cameron has directed many plays at the high school and the former Victoria Little Theatre. She has also headed the school's scholarship committee for several years.

Before joining the staff of Victoria High School, she taught for 10 years in other B.C. schools. She is a graduate of UBC.

An "artillery" convoy of 54 trucks, anti-aircraft guns and trailers manned by nearly 200 gunners from 4 Light Anti-Aircraft Battery, Work Point, leaves the city early Sunday for six weeks' summer camp at Wainwright, Alberta.

The unit will travel through the states of Washington and Idaho, escorted by four jeeps and eight traffic control personnel of the U.S. Provost Corps.

Battery commander Maj. R. A. McAlpine will lead the convoy, which will bivouac and eat in the open for the duration of the five-day trip.

An advance party in command of Lieut. F. S. Keating is already on its way.

Main body of gunners are due to pull out of Work Point at 3 a.m. Sunday, travelling via Sidney to Anacortes, Seattle, Spokane, Kingsgate, Fort MeLeod and Calgary.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. When a person becomes a widow, is it right to drop your husband's initials and use your own, or is either correct? C.M.

A. Strictly speaking, the widow should revert to her own initials. But this rule is often ignored, and there is no law to prevent the widow from signing her name in the same way as when her husband was alive.

Q. As an old reader of your paper, is it essential naval men must be able to swim? F.J.P.

A. It is not compulsory to be able to swim on entering naval service. However, it is compulsory that every officer and man be given swimming instruction until he passes a swimming test. This is to swim 40 yards fully dressed in uniform, and remain afloat for three minutes.

The Oriental Influence
Has Gone to Our Heads!

By PENNY SAVER

Have trouble handling those wobbly chopsticks, girls? Don't worry. With the ones I've discovered in town, you'll be an expert, 'cause all it takes is a feminine fashion trick. Of course, what I'm talking about are stylish "chopsticks" to stick into your chignon or French knot. Bejeweled, and sprinkled with sparkly gold and silver dust, these chopsticks have stones sets into the knobbed ends. They come in all colors, to match or contrast your newest ensemble, especially the ones with the Oriental influence. Yellow, red, white, black, chalk, pink and blue are some of the colors available for the girl with the long tresses. To be bought in pairs, they cost $1 each. You'll be the talk of the town when you wear these eye-catchers.

Earrings always hold a fascination for women who want to look smart, and simple earrings that have proved the test of time and fashion are a part of many jewelry wardrobes. Hoops for pierced ears can be worn in any one of five sizes to suit the size and shape of your face. For the tall girl with long or very short hair, the gypsy-like hoops of plain gold are perfect. They range down in size, featuring engraved or twisted hoops as well as the completely smooth, plain ones. All are priced at $1.95 a pair. The wires are 10 carat gold.

Reviving top fashion ideas from days past, a fashion house has put out ladies' timepieces in ornate, antique settings. Large, pieces, they are, too, for they are meant for the woman who loves chunky, large jewelry. To pin on your jacket or onto the belt of your sports outfit, there's a gold speckled baked enamel pocket watch-size timepiece that is like turquoise. It also comes in pink, and costs $10.95.

Widow Should Avoid
'Fifth Wheel' Complex

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

One of the biggest handicaps a widow faces is her own attitude toward widowhood.

Hurlock

(Q)—"I lost my husband a year ago and miss him terribly. Although I have two sons, one is away at school and the other is 12 years old—just the age when he won't go anywhere with me. All my friends are married and have their own interests, though they are very nice to me. They invite me to go out with them and to their homes but I always feel like a fifth wheel to a wagon. I am only 41 years old and still young enough to go out now and then and enjoy life a little. My days aren't too bad, as I work, but the evenings are very lonely. I know it is much easier for a man than for a woman to find friends and I would like some suggestions from you about how I can make some friends so I won't be so lonely."—T.B.

(A)—First of all, you must get over the idea that you are not wanted, that you are a "fifth wheel to a wagon," and that people invite you to do things with them just because they are sorry for you. Most widows feel this way and that adds to their loneliness.

Then replace this idea with the one that you are or can be a social asset. Your friends often need an extra woman, even when the guests are equally divided between men and women. If the hostess is to be a real hostess and see that everyone is having a good time, an extra person to take care of details is invaluable to her.

This is where a widow can step in. Offer to get to a party or even to an informal entertainment early and help with last-minute details. Then tactfully suggest to your hostess that she leave matters in your hands while she spends her time with her guests. You will find this role will bring you in touch with everyone present but without making you feel out of things. In fact, you will be in the centre of everything and will be making the party move smoothly.

Wedding Vows
Recent Ceremony

Pink peonies and stocks were placed at the altar and the chancel rail of St. John's Church recently for the wedding ceremony in which Miss Jane Ann Kinney, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. E. E. Kinney, Doncaster Drive, became the bride of Barry Dennis Birnie, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bernie of Chilliwack. Canon George Biddle officiated and Capt. Kinney gave his daughter in marriage.

For the ceremony, the bride wore an ankle-length dress of net with lace panels, matching the lace of the dainty jacket with lily point sleeves. Her fingertip veil was held to a crown of pearls and sequins. Red roses and stephanotis were in her bridal bouquet.

Maid of honor Miss Frances Switzer and bridesmaid Miss Noella Goode wore net and lace dresses in aqua and mauve, respectively. Their bouquets were of salmon pink carnations and yellow carnations. They wore dainty headresses in tone.

Flower girls Darlene and Dorothy Sheppard wore yellow dresses trimmed with lace. They carried colonial bouquets of yellow and mauve sweet peas with matching headresses.

Best man was Garry Johns and ushers Robert Kinney and Gordie McMann.

A reception followed in Newstead Hall, where carnations and roses formed floral decoration. The three-tier cake on a silver stand was flanked by white candles in silver holders in the centre of the bride's table. P. H. Cull, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to her happiness.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to Vancouver and Seattle, the bride wore a beige box suit with copper shoes and purse and cocoa-toned hat. A corsage of yellow roses was pinned to her pale green coat.

Mr. and Mrs. Birnie have made their home in this city.

Senior Senator Urges Women
Support Sex in Public Life

HALIFAX (CP)—Senator Cairine Wilson says more women would enter public life if they had the support of Canadian women in general.

She said in an interview here that women in the home now have a better opportunity than ever before to participate in public affairs.

"I'm delighted to have more women in the Senate," said the country's first woman senator, who sat as the only woman in the upper house from 1930 to 1935.

Senator Wilson said she does not resent the Speaker's use of the words "honorable gentleman" in referring to men and women members, although there had been a decision to substitute "honorable senators."

However, women should be accepted as equals and not set apart from their men colleagues.

WOMEN'S PRESS CLUB GIVES
FIRST MEMORIAL AWARD

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Elda Cadogan, wife of the editor-publisher of a country weekly, Saturday was announced as the first winner of the Canadian Women's Press Club's annual $100 Rica Farquharson Award.

The prize, for the Canadian woman playwright considered to have made the year's outstanding contribution to humorous drama, commemorates the late Rica Farquharson, wife of Robert Farquharson, counsellor of the Canadian Embassy in Washington. She died in Washington last year.

She was a life-long newspaper woman with an interest in light drama, believing that Canadians take themselves too seriously.

Mrs. Cadogan is the wife of publisher George Cadogan of the weekly Durham, Ont., Chronicle.

She won the award for two farces, "The Invisible Worm," and "Rise and Shine."

World Tired of Grotesque
Fashions, Designer Thinks

NEW YORK (AP)—Women don't really like to look like lampshades, string beans or little boys. They like to look like women.

This drastic discovery was made by fashion designer Adele Simpson during a recent trip during which she talked to thousands of women in scores of towns north, south, east and west. Says she:

"Women are tired of fads and grotesque fashions. They're also fed up on the over-casual look, which sometimes turns out to be merely sloppy. Surprisingly enough it's not fashionable to be lady-like, neat, elegant, properly hatted and gloved, even a bit formal."

During the recent openings of her fall fashion collection, Mrs. Simpson explained the research and psychology behind the look of fall clothes—the elegance of town clothes, the important hats, the return of the long evening gown. The changes in the silhouette are subtle, but you can't miss them. There's a raised waistline, a fastidious feminine look, a directoire air to her new suits and dresses. Clothes are slender, but not skintight, in the recent sheath manner. The designer explains:

"Women like to be able to move around inside their clothes. That's another thing I found by talking to them. They don't want to feel trussed up like a turkey ready for the oven. They want to feel elegant."

as well as look that way. And nobody ever looked beautiful poised and attractive in a dress so tight that she couldn't breathe."

The bride wore a flattering-length gown fashioned with long torso line, and bouffant skirt of lace and nylon tulle. Her matching lace jacket featured long, lacy point sleeves. A misting shoulder-length veil of white tulle was held to a dainty coronet. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis, and wore a three-strand pearl necklace.

Only attendant was the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. H. Frank Jarvis, matron of honor. Best man was Thomas Sexton.

Following a reception party at Chez Marcel, the newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip to be spent motoring through the United States and western Canada. For travelling, the bride wore a turquoise suit with matching accessories and a soft camel hair coat.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts will live at 1301 Fort Street when they return.

Indians Move Slowly Toward New Ways; Much Depends on Education

KINGSTON (CP) — The integration of Indians into the Canadian way of life depends on education, member of Parliament Ann Shipley said Tuesday.

She told the National Council of Women's 63rd annual meeting that adult Indians are slow to accept new ways. It was hard for them to move in a single generation from nomadic life to industrial employment.

Young Indian students, however, could be trained as effectively as other Canadians. They should be encouraged to attend public schools, not only for knowledge but also so they can associate with others, gradually absorbing new ways. It would save them the sudden transition undergone by their elders.

MUST BE HELPED

Mrs. Shipley, Liberal member for Timiskaming, said changes of existing legislation for Indians would be made only with their consent. The government did not wish to force anything on them.

If they were to apply for enfranchisement, however, Indians must be helped to prepare themselves to hold their own in a new world. Most could not now because their standard of living was below that of most Canadians.

In Alberta, Indian boys were taking agricultural courses and later working on farms whose owners guided and encouraged them—overlooking their inevitable lack of skill while they learned.

Indian girls there were learning household science, taking jobs in hospitals in small communities where transition from nomadic life is not as difficult as it would be in large cities.

INTEREST ELSEWHERE

"The promising beginning that is being made in Alberta is arousing interest in several other provinces," Mrs. Shipley said. "We

Why Not Learn to Dive?
This Is the Way to Begin

I am writing for a few days about swimming and diving in the hope that I may prod some of you who never have learned to swim into doing so. Also some of you may wish to improve your strokes or learn a new one.

I remember keenly the first time I ever dived (if you could call it that) from the end of a rowboat into a Kentucky river. I doubt that there is any more frightening feeling than the one you have just before the first time you go into the water head first. Nor is there any satisfaction more gratifying. Once you make that first plunge, from then on it's fun.

If you are tired of crawling in the pool or river or lake why not learn to dive? This is the way you begin:

First, sit on the edge of the pool. Let your feet dangle in the water as you bend from the waist with your arms stretched out in front of you and your head ducked. Keep your head in the same position as you fall into the water.

Place the arms and the head in the same position. Fall into the water.

This time stand on the edge of the pool. Curl your toes around the edge. Bend forward from the waist with your arms

Blossom Tea
In Saanich Garden

Despite threat of rain a large crowd gathered in the attractive garden of Hon. Kenneth Kiernan and Mrs. Kiernan, West Saanich Road, on Wednesday afternoon, for a blossom tea arranged by the Saanich Social Credit auxiliary.

Guests were received by Mrs. Kiernan assisted by Mrs. Thelma Clarke, auxiliary president and Mrs. John Tisdale, wife of the Saanich MLA. A program of Highland dancing was presented by pupils of the Adeline Duncan School: Jamie Troy, piper; Elaine Dickenson, Heather and Kathy Serhyenko and Jeannie McNeill.

Afternoon tea was served under the huge twin cedar tree on the front lawn. Mrs. Clarke was general convener and tea arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Tisdale, Mrs. T. Hamilton, Mrs. K. Jennings, Mrs. Spillsbury, Miss M. Filmer and Mrs. P. Conroy. Gate tickets were taken by Mrs. A. Filmer and Mrs. Boydell and a fancywork table was in charge of Mrs. Lewis Harvey, Deep Cove. Tea cups were read by the Misses Hamilton of Fulford Harbor, Salt Spring Island.

Guests included Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett and wives of members of the cabinet; Mrs. Percy B. Scourrah, Mr. Tisdale, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. McConach, Mr. B. Dunkley, Mrs. E. T. Beeson, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Kingston and Mr. and Mrs. R. Evans, all of Duncan; Mr. and Mrs. Work of Chemainus and a number of visitors from Nanaimo.

out in front of you. Duck your head between your arms. Remember two things as you fall. Your body will follow your head. Do NOT lift your head. Keep it down and you won't hit flat. Also, as you fall, remember to keep your feet on the edge for as long as possible.

After you have learned this much you can add a little push from your feet just before they leave the edge. When you get to this stage you can bend your knees slightly and get a little spring in your dive. In a higher dive always remember to keep the head down or lower it before hitting the water.

If you would like to have my leaflet which shows you how to learn to swim and also how to swim the breast stroke, side stroke, the crawl and the following dives: the back dive, the jackknife, the back jackknife, and the swan dive, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 22 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

ACAC Fact

Did you know that the chief function of the Canadian Association of Consumers is to act as a voice for all consumers? The CAC presents the consumers' point of view before government commissions and boards. It confers for consumers with groups representing trade and industry and agriculture as well as government. It advises the manufacturer of consumers' opinions about his product. The Canadian Association of Consumers works the other way round, too, giving consumers information they need for their protection and for wise buying.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Carolyn Ellis, aged 11, of Dallas, Texas, for her question:

Is Cane Sugar Different From Beet Sugar?
Dip into the sugar bowl and you'll find a mystery. The crystals on the tip of your tongue. Taste buds on the tip of your tongue. Of all the different kinds of sugar, this one is called sucrose.

Sugar beet thrives in moderate climates. Like the cane, it needs lots of water. It is planted from seed and ready for harvest in about seven months. Above ground is a crown of handsome green leaves. The sugar is in the root which looks like a long, tapering turnip. At harvest, the leaves are lopped off and roots sent to the sugar mill. They are carefully washed and shredded into oblong strips. Sugar juice is extracted from the beet in hot water compartments. The raw juice is purified much as is cane juice. The squeezed-out pulp is a valuable cattle fodder. The molasses from beet sugar is often used to help make plastics. The finished product is a sugar called sucrose—no wonder you can't tell the difference because beet sugar and cane sugar are the same substance.

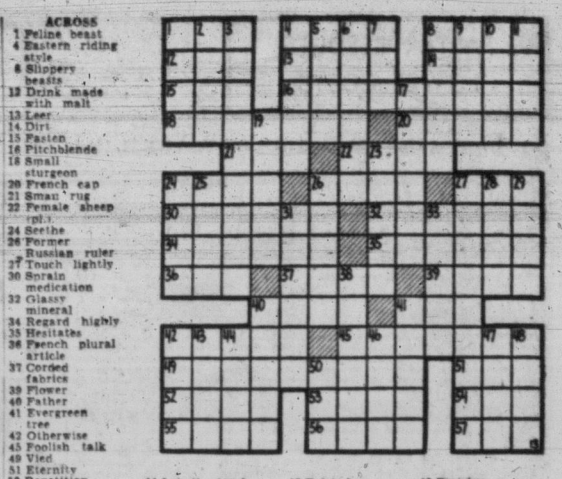

The sugar cane thrives in loamy, damp, tropical or semi-tropical fields. Its slender stalk is jointed and trimmed with slim green leaves. Its cane stem may be purple, green, red, yellow or even gaily striped. New plants sprout from the joints in these canes, though the cane grows a feathery plume and tiny seeds. If they were 100 times bigger, the seeds would look like grains of wheat. Cuttings of cane from 12 to 24 inches long are used for planting. They are placed end to end in furrows and lightly covered with soil. Roots and sprigs sprout from the joints in about a week. Harvest may be ready between nine and 24 months later. By that time the jungle of canes may be anywhere from 10 to 40 feet tall.

The canes are cut, trimmed of leaves and chopped into sections. They are toted to a mill where a machine knifes them into shreds without squeezing the sugary juice inside them. The rich juice is then pressed out through rollers. This raw stuff is brownish and teeming with molasses and impurities. Squeezed-out cane is sometimes used as furnace fuel in the mill. The raw juice is often sent to be refined at another mill. The refining is a complex job of washing, whirling, vacuuming and more washing. Andy sends a Hammond Nature Atlas of America to Charles Goshgarian, age 12, of Milwaukee, Wis. for his question: Do snails have teeth?

The snail is a mollusk, cousin to the clam and the oyster. These are simple animals and we can't expect a great deal from them. Clams and oysters don't even have heads. Our snail does. He has a head with two eye stalks and has one fancy foot which he can extend from his underside. He is called a gastropod—a stomach-foot. He has a mouth, for we can watch him nibble away on a moldy leaf. However, a pair of chopping jaws is too much to expect from a mollusk—even a gastropod. The snail has no jaws. Can he have teeth without jaws? Yes, he can. The snail is full of surprises, for he has hundreds of teeth.

True, they are very, very tiny teeth. They are arranged on a flat strip inside his mouth. He uses them as a sort of file. He shreds up his food before swallowing it. In fact, his strip of teeth is called a radula, which means a little file.

NEW DELHI (AP)—Five days of earthquakes in Afghanistan may have killed more than 100 persons, reports from Kabul said today. The maid who brought breakfast to us on our first morning at Fort Belvedere told us that the Prince had finished his an hour before and had gone into the garden. Shortly after Ernest and I had wandered into the drawing room I observed advancing up the terrace slope an outlandish figure in baggy plus fours, a thick sweater, hair tousled, and carrying in one hand a billhook, a machete-like tool for cutting brush. It was the Prince, with his cairn terriers Cora and Jaggs yapping happily at his heels.

"Ah," said the Prince with mock consternation, "I take it your guests are to be ordered back to the lair!" The Prince explained that he occupied his weekends trying to clear away the tangle of undergrowth that had overwhelmed the hillside during the decades the property had lain either disused or neglected. My particular enemy," he said brandishing the billhook, "is the laurel, which I have sworn to annihilate if it costs me my last guest. Come along, if you want to, I can equip you with the necessary weapons."

"It's not exactly a command," interjected George Trotter, "but I've never known anybody to escape." Exercise was a pursuit that Ernest favored only in the role of a spectator. And his interest in gardening was strictly aesthetic. I was therefore quite taken aback when, with an unwelcome display of enthusiasm, he said he'd be delighted to cut laurel.

"IT HAS CHARM"

He went upstairs for a sweater. While he was gone the Prince took me out on the terrace to show me the grounds. From where we stood the land sloped gently towards a lovely lake in the distance, known as Virginia Water. Just below us the green lawn ended in a semi-circular stone battlement in which were placed 30 or more 16th century Belgian cannon. Directly below the battlement on one side was a large swimming pool, where once had been a lily pond, and on the other side a dirt tennis court.

The Prince walked me around the grounds, showing where he had had yew trees felled so as to let in light and open the view. He tried to sound matter of fact, but his inner pleasure over what he had found and restored to life and beauty burst through the guise of nonchalance. "It's certainly not a beautiful place, as houses in England go," he said with a quizzical glint at the strange conglomeration of turrets on the hill. "But for me it has unusual charm, and I've found more pleasure in fixing it up than—"

MEN'S WORK

The others just then overlooked us, and the Prince went off with the men to equip them with billhooks and heavy gloves. With the Prince showing the way we started down a path through a woodland of birch and magnificent cedar. All this had until recently been an impassable mass of laurel and briar; now it was given over to rare and lovely rhododendrons, many of which he had planted with his own hands. Narrow footpaths were a direct result of his search of some interesting glen vista; these had also been the Prince's conceit. Then the path we were following ended abruptly in a dank wall of laurel.

"Here we are," said the Prince briskly. "You can see now what I have been up against. Well, this is the last bad stretch. By summer I shall have finished with it." Stooping, he began hacking at the untidy undergrowth with fierce but practiced strokes. At that point the Prince, Connie and I decided to leave the men to what was clearly a man's work.

HIS PRIDE

After lunch the Prince took Ernest and me on a tour of the house. He was especially proud of the little library, which contained some good Queen Anne pieces. His own bedroom, on the ground floor, was a large and charming room with tall windows hung with red curtains looking out upon the garden. The walls were painted white, and all about were photographs of his family. What fascinated me was the architectural wizardry that had been exercised in imparting to the interior of this sprawling fort such an atmosphere of warmth and attractive informality.

The end of the day produced the final small revelation of the

SHOE, DENTAL X-RAYS INJURIOUS TO HEALTH?

Atomic scientists in both the United States and Britain, in separate reports carried on page 7 in today's Times, express concern over increasing use of radio-active devices in medicine.

Unnecessary X-rays, including dental X-rays, and X-rays for the fitting of shoes, are frowned upon. Main body of the report, however, deals with the danger of fall-out from the H-bomb tests. One British scientist believes that the entire milk supply in the U.S. has been made radio-active.

Nine Killed In French Rail Crash

146 Injured,
Many Serious

RHEIMS, France (Reuters)—At least nine persons were killed, and 146 injured today when the crack Paris-Luxembourg express jumped the tracks at near-by Fismes and crashed into a bridge.

Police said 30 of the injured are in critical condition. Firemen, police and railway workers used acetylene torches to cut away the wreckage in which they feared more dead were lying.

The fourth car of the train was reported to have jumped the tracks when a coupling snapped. The car crashed into the bridge supports, derailing the eight remaining cars.

The Fismes air raid siren was sounded to summon help as every available ambulance was sent racing to the scene.

GHOSTLY CRIES

The train had left Paris' Gare du Nord terminus at 7:20 this morning and was to make a first stop at Rheims 20 minutes after the crash occurred at 8:51. Traffic on the line is expected to be interrupted for 36 hours while workmen repair the damaged track and cranes lift the wreckage.

A shopkeeper with premises a few yards from the scene said the express left the rails with "a fearful noise."

"Thick smoke swirled about the train. I saw people covered in blood staggering out of the smoke. Ghostly cries could be heard from the wreckage."

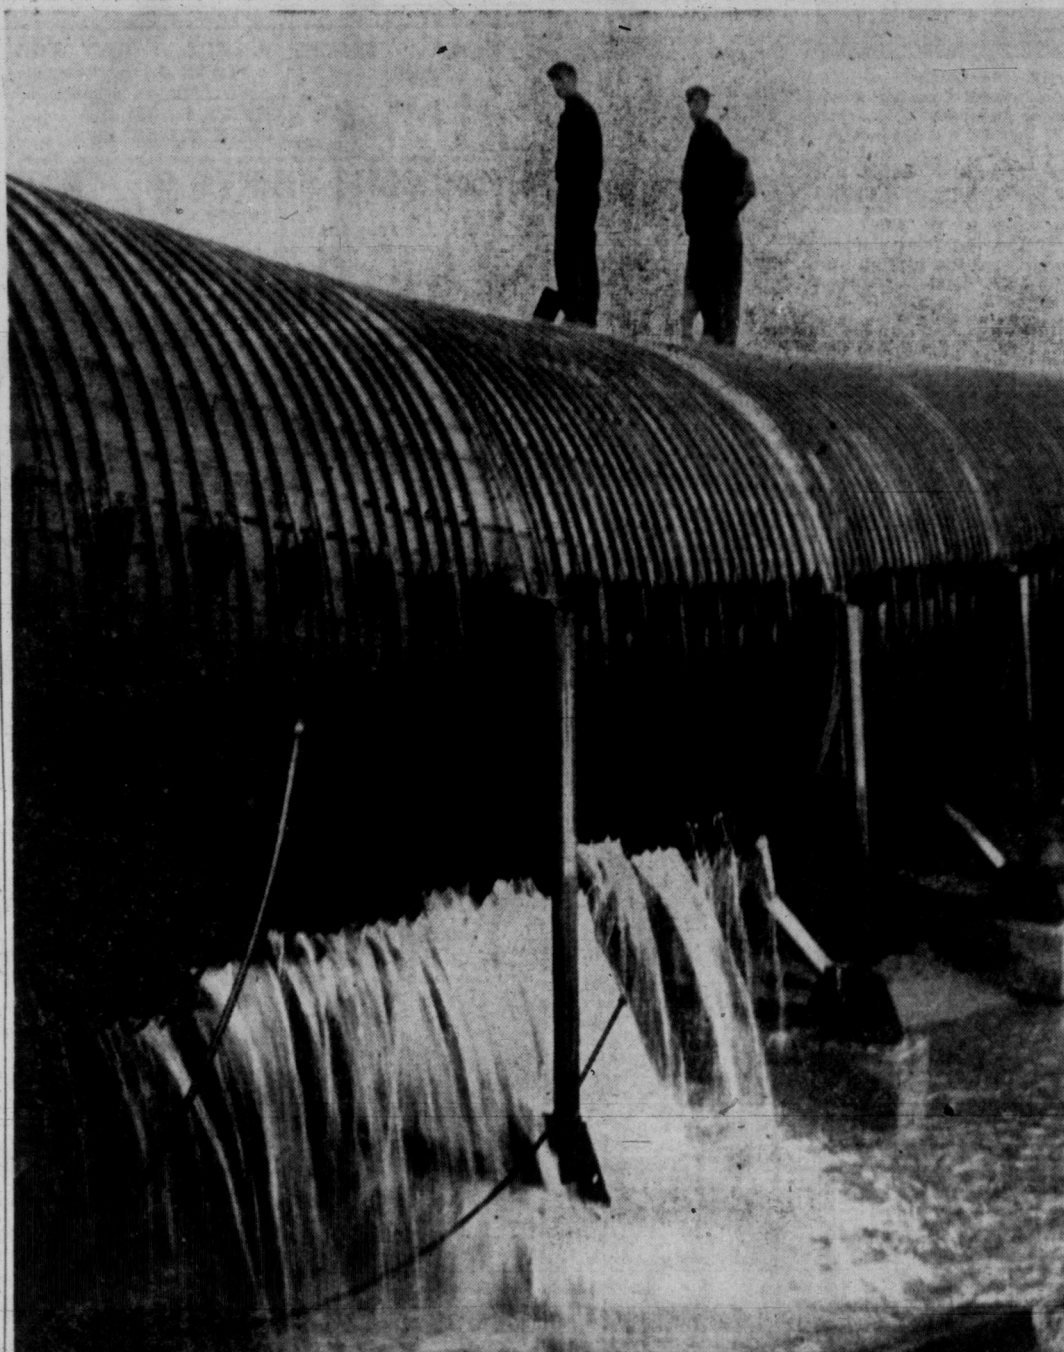

Some of the dead were catapulted from the train by the impact and then dragged along the ground before the coaches fell on top of them.

BENNETT PREDICTS SASKATCHEWAN WIN

SASKATOON (CP)—Premier Bennett of British Columbia predicts Saskatchewan voters next week will elect enough Social Crediters to form the province's next government.

"The opposing parties got a surprise in British Columbia in 1952," Premier Bennett said, "and I think they will get a surprise here June 20."

Although Premier Bennett has many times forecast that the Socials would win a "number of seats" in Saskatchewan, this is his first prediction that Social Credit will elect a government.

PENSTOCK BREAK CAUSED POWER FAILURE

Water continued to pour today from fracture in wood stave pipe at John Hart hydro development. When break occurred Wednesday night, B.C. Power Commission crews closed plant pending survey of trouble.

caused temporary power blackout on Vancouver Island. Pipe, 12 feet in diameter, was built nine years ago, and was first to serve huge Campbell River plant. (See also page 27.)

Experts Back Mica Dam Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton disclosed today that consulting engineers have proved the feasibility of a $247,000,000 hydro-electric power station at Mica Creek on the Columbia River in British Columbia.

The Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission also described as "frivolous" new United States proposals for construction of the proposed Libby dam in western Montana.

Testifying before the Commons external affairs committee, Gen. McNaughton ruled out proposals for construction of 10 dams on the Fraser River and its tributaries for harnessing power and facilitating the movement of salmon up and downstream.

Gen. McNaughton said the report on the proposed Mica Creek project, which would do much to relieve B.C.'s present and future power shortages, was prepared by the commission's international Columbia River engineering board.

The commission has been considering for some time the possibility of a dam on the Columbia at Mica Creek, about 150 miles north of Revelstoke.

B.C. DECISION

He said the board's report is a firm conclusion that a dam would be a sound economic proposition at Mica Creek. It would have an installed capacity of about 1,500,000 kilowatts.

"We now have a completely firm proposition for Mica," he said. "In a few months the designs in the board's report could be changed into engineering drawings."

Outside the committee, Gen. McNaughton said the final decision on whether a power project will be built at Mica Creek rests with the B.C. government. It was understood that resources Minister Lesage will discuss the matter with Premier Bennett in Victoria June 25.

Tories Will Force House To Sit Through Summer

By VICTOR MACKIE

Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Conservative members of Parliament are prepared to continue the present session of Parliament to the end of August if necessary, it was learned Thursday following a Progressive Conservative caucus.

All hope of an early summer adjournment of the session has now ended.

The Progressive Conservatives are determined to question each item in the estimates and to scrutinize the budget provision and new legislation in great detail. They contend that they have lost confidence in the present administration and intend to oppose vigorously provisions in the estimates or legislation which does not have their approval.

The Conservatives insist that their recent decision to allow the passage of a money bill to enable the government to meet its payrolls in June and pay its accounts was only a decision taken to avoid making civil servants the "victims of the government's bungling."

The Conservative and CCF members believe there is a strong possibility that the prolongation of the present session may end up with the government deciding to call a federal election late this fall. Both parties are calling for the dissolution of Parliament once the main business before it has been completed.

Engineers Probe Cause of Collapse In Hart Penstock

A night-long battle by construction men who built new foundations under a sagging 12-foot wooden pipe at the John Hart hydro development resulted in the island's electrical power supply returning to normal today.

A preliminary estimate, made prior to detailed examination, set the amount of damage at $25,000 to $50,000.

It followed an island-wide blackout Wednesday night, when the collapse of footings supporting the oldest of three wood-stave pipes carrying water to the powerhouse, opened great holes in the pipe and damaged a second.

The plant was closed down immediately, and portions of Victoria and other Island areas were without power for up to 50 minutes. Island industries were threatened, but the plant now is operating at two-thirds of capacity—sufficient to meet all demands at this time of year.

As the first pipe sagged the staves spread and released a torrent of water, which in turn undermined footings under the second pipe. The third was unharmed.

Just what caused the ground

to give way under the first pipe is not known, but it is suspected that a leak occurred where the wooden pipe joints a steel conduit for the last plunge down to the powerhouse turbines.

The pipe is inspected regularly.

Although damage appears to be moderate, pulp mills at Har-mac, Duncan Bay and Alberni lost production on their graveyard shifts.

It was feared that they would be shut down for weeks. But fast work by B.C. Power Commission crews restored service within a few minutes on No. 3 penstock, which feeds water to two of the six 20,000-kilowatt generators in the powerhouse.

Nine hours later another two units were back in production.

Muir Fails 7th Try; Will Await Mass Swim

Saanich surveyor Bill Muir's seventh attempt to buck the Strait of Juan de Fuca ended in failure at 3.30 p.m. Wednesday after five hours and four minutes in the water.

LAUGHREN IN NEW BID JUNE 23

Victoria's swimming chief, 270-pound Ben Laughren, will make his fifth attempt to conquer the Strait of Juan de Fuca Saturday, June 23, starting at 3.30 a.m. from the Chinese Cemetery.

His last bid, on Monday, he was in the water eight hours and 40 minutes and was defeated by the severe rip tides, plus a sore arm, at Race Rocks.

Judge Would Hang Witness

REGINA (CP) — An appeal court judge said Wednesday that the only person he would hang on the evidence of the chief crown witness against convicted murderer Jacob Dyck would be the witness himself.

Mr. Justice P. H. Gordon said as the court heard the appeal of Dyck against his conviction that he would not believe any of the evidence of Elizabeth Teotile La Fleche.

Dyck was tried three times for the murder of 74-year-old Mike Todd, who was slain Jan. 1, 1954. His body lay sealed in his own room for 16 months before police found it.

After the latest trial, Dyck was sentenced to be hanged July 24.

As the appeal court judges heard Dyck's appeal Wednesday they commented and asked questions freely.

Mr. Justice A. T. Procter said that the woman took a secret oath (to tell anything but the truth) at the preliminary hearing and the first trial.

"She lied to escape some penalty she was afraid of if she told the truth," he said. "Now what lie was that?"

He said one objection he had to the charge by the trial judge, Mr. Justice A. Doiron, was that he failed to mention La Fleche was "an unmitigated liar. She was not only that, but a drug addict, alcoholic thief, self-confessed perjurer and bigamist."

The judges repeatedly expressed doubt that the evidence showed that Dyck was the only one who could have committed the crime.

Presbyterian 1957 Assembly At Vancouver

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Presbyterians Wednesday selected Vancouver as the site of next year's general assembly.

Delegates to the church's 82nd general assembly voted overwhelmingly in favor of meeting in Kerrisdale Presbyterian Church, Vancouver, next June. The invitation was extended by Rev. Harry Lennox, rector of the church.

The assembly heard Rev. Eoin Mackay of Saskatoon present a report on the mission and state of the Presbyterian church. "We can have a sense of reasonable satisfaction over the state of the church," said Mr. Mackay.

"Basically it is in good health and health. But as we look at it we cannot say that it gives the appearance of a church that is really on fire."

"We are not making the impact on the life of our nation that we could make. Our mission must be to push on and show our people that we really mean business," he said.

TWO B.C. SLAYERS GRANTED REPRIEVE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A reprieve until Oct. 16 was granted Wednesday by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson to Joseph Gordon and James Carey. They were found guilty on April 26 of the slaying Dec. 7 of Constable Gordon Sinclair.

The execution was set originally for July 10, but their appeal does not open until Sept. 17, prosecutor William A. Schultz told the trial judge when he asked for postponement of the hanging.

H-Bomb Fall-Out Coats Earth's Grass With Poison

All U.S. Milk Contaminated,
Says British Research Expert

(Editor's Note: In the following dispatch a noted British atomic expert reduces to layman's terms the meaning of the new British Medical Research Council's painstaking study of atomic radiation. He says the reports warn, "we had better look out," particularly if H-bomb tests are continued.)

By Dr. J. M. A. LENIHAN
Written for United Press

LONDON (UP) — The British Medical Research Council's long-awaited report on atomic radiation is both reassuring and frightening.

On the H-bomb problem, the doctors, biologists and physicists have answered both yes and no. The H-bomb tests will not produce visible damage in people outside the immediate danger zone.

But the long term picture is very different. The genetic hazards — the effects of radiation on future generations — are not to be taken lightly.

The crux of the report dealt with strontium, that highly radioactive substance blown thousands of feet into the air in an atomic explosion and every day filtering down to coat and poison the earth's surface.

When a modern H-bomb is let off, a great cloud of highly radioactive vapor rises into the stratosphere, about 50,000 feet up. There it condenses to fine dust and is carried by wind and rain until it settles gradually over the earth's surface.

A lot of this cloud is made of short-lived radioactivity which soon decays, but some parts, including radioactive strontium, keep falling for years. This strontium is chemically similar to calcium.

When it falls on the earth, it coats grass and other crops with a fine film of radioactive poison.

Strontium in Babies' Bones

A cow eats the grass and the strontium comes out in her milk. A baby drinks the milk and the strontium settles in his bones. This much has been proved by experiments done at Harwell, Britain's principal atomic laboratory.

All the milk produced in the U.S. must now be contaminated too. The amount of radioactive strontium on the ground — and in children's bones — will go on increasing, even if no more bombs are dropped, because of the radioactive dust is still up in the stratosphere and won't come down for 10 years or more.

Every new bomb adds its quota to the poisonous girdle.

How much harm does the strontium do? The British committee finds the present concentration to be well below the accepted tolerance level. But it predicts that trouble may start in a few decades, if H-bomb trials continue at their present rate of one or two a year.

One school of thought, including most government sources, maintains that the amount of radiation produced by distant H-bomb trials is very small compared with the accepted tolerance levels and that no one can possibly come to any harm.

The other group maintains that even very small doses of radiation can eventually do damage, by interfering with the genetic make-up of men. It is known from experiments with insects and small animals that X-rays will cause mutations. These are changes in the pattern of characteristics handed down from one generation to the next.

Most of these mutations are harmful and they don't become obvious until they are well spread out among the whole population. This may take generations, but by that time the harm will be done and nothing will cure it.

Many scientists, including nearly all the top geneticists, are frankly worried in case the radiation doses given to the population by radioactive debris from H-bomb trials will bring a crop of mutations among our descendants.

CONCENTRATION HERE FIVE TIMES NORMAL

Radioactive material released into the atmosphere by the hydrogen bomb explosion over Bikini atoll May 21 has reached Victoria.

"But it's not dangerous," said Dr. William English of the Pacific Naval Laboratory, who detected the material. "The concentration of radioactive material is about five times that usually found in the atmosphere, but it would have to be thousands of times stronger to cause harm."

The test was made by filtering rain water, then testing the resulting residue with a Geiger counter. "We did it just out of curiosity, and just to know what was going on," Dr. English said. "Simple equipment was available here, so we used it."

Last fall Dr. English and other scientists found radioactive material and deduced it had come from a Russian atomic explosion. The current tests showed a peak of radioactivity here Saturday.

The material filtered from the rain is fine dust resulting from the fission of uranium, Dr. English said.

"Our test had nothing to do with the work of the Pacific Naval Laboratory," he said. "We did it just for our own amusement."

U.S. Dentists Deny X-Ray Is Dangerous

NEW YORK (AP)—Dental authorities Wednesday described as "unfortunate and misleading" a report by the National Academy of Sciences that medical and dental X-rays are a hazard to human life. Dr. Herbert L. Taub, president of the New York State Dental Society, said that with modern dental techniques and equipment, there could be no danger to reproductive organs, as suggested by the report.

The academy of sciences report, issued Tuesday in Washington after a year-long study, said radiation from any source — bombs, nuclear research or X-rays is "often harmful" to life.

He said the report has "caused needless apprehension to hundreds of dental patients"—and that many dentists had reported patients calling to cancel appointments for X-ray examinations of their teeth.

Dr. Samuel S. Wald, associate professor of radiology at New York University college of dentistry, also said that dental X-rays properly made with proper modern apparatus "will have no harmful effects."

DOCTORS CONCERNED

From UP and AP

LONDON—The British Medical Research Council's report on atomic radiation, just released here, has expressed concern over the growing use of medical radiology.

The use of X-ray and radioactive isotopes is increasing by 12 per cent in Britain each year, according to the report. It also expressed concern over luminous watch dials, high-powered television tubes and incidental use of X-ray devices as unnecessary increasing radiation risks.

The report of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences, issued at the same time, said immediate steps should be taken to guard against the danger.

SUGGEST KEEP RECORD

They suggested keeping a "radiological history" of each individual—a continuing record of the amount of exposure to radiation from X-ray pictures, medical treatment, in laboratories or power plants, and from fall-out as the result of bomb tests.

Dr. Warren Weaver, chairman of the academy's genetics committee, said he thinks people are spending unnecessarily too much of the slight tolerance to radiation which nature allows them. He called "stupid" the use of X-ray for fitting shoes and spoke out against X-ray snapshots of infants "just so the mother can see the skeleton of her baby is beautifully formed."

Stressing possible widespread danger to generations yet unborn unless control of radiation is assured, the academy called for these two steps as heredity precautions:

1. Establishment of a national system for keeping a record of every American's exposure to radiation from any source throughout his whole lifetime.

2. Limiting the amount of man-made radiation reaching people's reproductive organs. The limitation would be on the amount beyond that encountered naturally from cosmic rays and radioactive deposits in the earth.

The academy gave its initial findings from a year-long and continuing study of the effects of atomic radiation on man and his environment. It said that so far, tests of atomic weapons have presented a smaller genetic hazard than have medical uses of radiation.

'Screwiest Strike' Resumes

BIRKENHEAD, England (CP)—"Britain's screwiest strike" flared up again here Tuesday eight days after an announcement that a settlement had been reached.

The strike, which lasted from November until April, stemmed from a dispute between metal workers and wood workers over who should drill holes in wood faced with aluminum.

Tuesday, 150 of the wood workers refused to work after sheet metal men had been given the task of joining aluminum sheets on to the wood.

On June 4, agreement was said to have been reached that sheet metal workers—members of the Ship Constructors and Shipwrights Association—would do the disputed work and not joiners belonging to the Amalgamated Society of Woodworkers.

But Tuesday, when the metal men began drilling aluminum sheet onto wood in the Camell Laird yard, about 150 of the joiners refused to work.

Negotiations went on until the evening but no decision was reached.

First Poisonings From Laburnum

First cases of laburnum seed poisoning this year were reported by Royal Jubilee Hospital today.

An undisclosed number of small children have had stomach pump treatment in hospital emergency. Their names were not released.

As yet, no cases have been reported by St. Joseph's Hospital.

The laburnum, an ornamental tree widely grown in the Greater Victoria area, bears seed pods at this time of year resembling garden peas, for which they are mistaken and eaten by children. Pods, now in early stage of development, later turn black but remain highly toxic although less attractive to children.

The danger season normally lasts about two months.

BETWEEN TIMES

By

MONTE ROBERTS

Where were you when the lights went out, or, lost in the bathtub without a candle.

But don't complain. You could have been balanced on a teetering chair which was balanced on a tottery table, trying to open a trap door to the attic.

I was. I will be up and around again soon, thanks.

A preliminary survey indicates that 5,347 wives said to 5,347 husbands, when the lights went out, "Are you SURE you paid the electric bill?"

Of the 5,347 husbands, 5,346 weren't sure.

The other one was sure. He was sure he hadn't.

There were several advantages to the black-out. Many cases of TV-eyes were aided by the enforced rest, our refrigerator needed defrosting, and we can all look forward to smaller light bills this month.

However, to turn to the brighter side, did you hear about the pigeon who took part in the Bill Muir swim yesterday?

This pigeon turned up at Fishermen's Wharf promptly at 9:30 a.m., and went aboard CKDA's Chatham Chief, the radio and press boat.

He stayed aboard the boat for the duration of the swim, hopping from shoulder to head of various parties. The pigeon was a friendly type, but silent. Didn't utter so much as a single coo.

Reporters figured he was a carrier pigeon, standing by to fly messages ashore in case the electronic means of communication broke down.

However, as his services were not needed, he turned out to be a mere passenger pigeon.

When the boat docked, he flew away about his business.

A thing which has been puzzling me is this. Who is the vice-president in charge of making the manhole covers on Government street higher than street level?

You cannot convince me they got that way accidentally. It must be part of an overall plan to keep motorists on the alert.

Driving from the roundabout to Johnson street along government presents an obstacle course worthy of the toughest road test.

VICTORIANS' JAIL SENTENCES REDUCED BY COURT OF APPEALS

Two Victorians won reduced jail sentences from B.C. Court of Appeal sittings in Vancouver Wednesday.

They are Brian E. McIllood, 19, and Donald Woodcock, 21, both of 1203 Blanshard, who were sentenced in city police court May 7 after they were convicted of breaking and entering Fernwood Variety Grocery, 2009 Fernwood, overnight April 30.

Both terms are now nine months definite and two years indefinite in Oakalla Young Offenders' Unit.

McIllood had drawn 18 months determinate and two years less a day indeterminate; Woodcock, one year determinate and two years less a day indeterminate.

Both had additional sentences of six months for taking a car without the owner's consent, to be served concurrently with the other sentences.

Aid Sought In Restoring Offenders

Head of the Canadian Association of Social Workers, which includes 2,000 professional persons across the country, here today voiced a strong plea for increased aid and understanding in restoring "young offenders" to social responsibility.

Rev. Shaun Govenlock, 39, assistant director of the school of social work, University of Montreal, said "a wider range" of skilled services and personnel was needed to meet this social challenge.

For example, young Johnny is seen by his school teacher to be in emotional difficulty. While the teacher's job stops at the school level, Father Govenlock said improved school social services could take over from there and endeavor to straighten out the young man's specific problems.

As he termed it, services are needed "to pick up in these situations."

This is only one aspect of Bill Muir's failure Wednesday—have been made from within the boundaries of Esquimalt or Victoria, on the north side, or from Ediz Hook at Port Angeles. Bert Thomas' successful swim was from the Hook to Macaulay Point, Esquimalt.

Simmons' swim is sponsored by Bee Hive Corn Syrup. If his attempt is successful, Coach Mellors will enter him in the Lake Ontario swim this fall, and then make an English Channel try.

Yarrows Submits Highest Bid On Storage Tanks

Yarrows Ltd. of Victoria has submitted a tender of $124,956 for the manufacture and supply of seven fuel storage tanks for the B.C. Power Commission's new thermal plant at Bare Point, Chetumal.

Other tenders are those of the Dominion Bridge Co., Vancouver, $397,000; Western Bridge and Steel Fabricators, $379,620; and Horton Steel Ltd., Calgary, $320,000.

The new thermal plant, to be constructed at a cost of $13,300,000, will be equipped with 100,000 horse power gas generators.

The B.C. Power Commission has invited tenders for the supply of about 280,000 pounds of galvanized steel for the 138,000-volt transmission line to Chetumal generating station and the Crofton substation.

Tenders will be opened in public at the commission's offices, 780 Blanshard, Victoria, at 2 p.m., June 28.

$2,100 Clothing Theft at Naden

Esquimalt police are investigating the theft Tuesday night of $2,100 worth of civilian and navy clothing stolen from Murdoch-Girard tailor shop at HMCS Naden, Nelles block.

The shop is operated by the Victoria firm as a convenience to naval personnel and is located in the main barracks building.

Toronto Marathoners To Try Narrow Part Of Strait For Swim

Not Taking Usual Route

The "secret course" planned for Ted Simmons' attempt on Juan de Fuca Strait is from Sheringham Point, 18 miles west of Race Rocks, to the U.S. shore near Port Angeles, an informed source said today.

Steve Mellors, coach of the Simmons swim team, is keeping the exact course secret until just prior to takeoff time.

He was to meet this afternoon with John F. Scott, meteorologist from Ottawa; Jack Russell, navigator for Marilyn Bell, and Alf Webb, Victoria fisherman, who will drive the escort craft.

Bill Muir, defeated in his seventh attempt Wednesday, said today: "If the reported course is the one he's going to take, I wouldn't call that a Strait crossing at all."

"I could swim it any day. In the old days, Indians used to ferry cattle across there on rafts that drifted with the tide."

If weather conditions appear right, the swim attempt will start at 4 a.m. Friday.

Shortest distance across the Strait from Sheringham Point is about 16 miles, but the swim will likely cover a direct line of about 20 miles, to a point near Port Angeles, the source said.

FROM VICTORIA

All other attempts—45 including Bill Muir's failure Wednesday—have been made from within the boundaries of Esquimalt or Victoria, on the north side, or from Ediz Hook at Port Angeles. Bert Thomas' successful swim was from the Hook to Macaulay Point, Esquimalt.

Simmons' swim is sponsored by Bee Hive Corn Syrup. If his attempt is successful, Coach Mellors will enter him in the Lake Ontario swim this fall, and then make an English Channel try.

Battery commander Maj. R. A. McAlpine will lead the convoy, which will bivouac and eat in the open for the duration of the five-day trip.

An advance party in command of Lieut. F. S. Keating is already on its way.

Main body of gunners are due to pull out of Work Point at 3 a.m. Sunday, travelling via Sidney to Anacortes, Seattle, Spokane, Kingsgate, Fort MeLeod and Calgary.

A service corps recovery vehicle and detail of men will meet the convoy Sunday and travel with it to Wainwright in case of breakdowns en route.

Included in the party will be 323 trucks, 90 heavy guns and radar fire control gear, some of which has gone ahead by rail.

BACK IN 'AUGUST

The battery is due back in Victoria about Aug. 11 or 12 and gunners will go on annual 30-day leave immediately.

With Second Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, Camp Gordon Head, the battery will concentrate with other units of First Canadian Infantry Division for large-scale manoeuvres.

QORs leave next Wednesday by ferry and rail.

Work Point engineers of 3 Field Squadron have already left for summer camp at Gagetown, N.B., leaving only a skeleton force at Esquimalt Garrison.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. When a person becomes a widow, is it right to drop your husband's initials and use your own, or is either correct? C.M.

A. Strictly speaking, the widow should revert to her own initials. But this rule is often ignored, and there is no law to prevent the widow from signing her name in the same way as when her husband was alive.

Q. As an old reader of your paper, is it essential naval men must be able to swim? F.J.P.

A. It is not compulsory to be able to swim on entering naval service. However, it is compulsory that every officer and man be given swimming instruction until he passes a swimming test. This is to swim 40 yards fully dressed in uniform, and remain afloat for three minutes.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

The Oriental Influence
Has Gone to Our Heads!

By PENNY SAVER

Have trouble handling those wobbly chopsticks, girls? Don't worry. With the ones I've discovered in town, you'll be an expert. Cause all it takes is a feminine fashion trick. Of course, what I'm talking about are stylish "chopsticks" to stick into your chignon or French knot. Bejeweled, and sprinkled with sparkly gold and silver dust, these chopsticks have stones set into the knobbed ends. They come in all colors, to match or contrast your newest ensemble—especially the ones with the Oriental influence. Yellow, red, white, black, chalk, pink and blue are some of the colors available for the girl with the long tresses. To be bought in pairs, they cost $1 each. You'll be the talk of the town when you wear these eye-catchers.

Earrings always hold a fascination for women who want to look smart, and simple earrings that have proved the test of time and fashion are a part of many jewelry wardrobes. Hoops for pierced ears can be worn in any one of five sizes to suit the size and shape of your face. For the tall girl with long or very short hair, the gypsy-like hoops of plain gold are perfect. They range down in size, featuring engraved or twisted hoops as well as the completely smooth, plain ones. All are priced at $1.95 a pair. The wires are 10 carat gold.

Revisiting top fashion ideas from days past, a fashion house has put out ladies' timepieces in ornate, antique settings. Large pieces, they are, too, for they are meant for the woman who loves chunky, large jewelry. To pin on your jacket or onto the belt of your sports outfit, there's a gold speckled baked enamel pocket-watch-size timepiece that is like turquoise. It also comes in pink, and costs $10.95.

Anti-magnetic, Swiss made watches; every one, they are fun to wear. A wristwatch with black face has pearl, stone and mother of pearl face trim, and the watch band is of green, blue, navy, red, white or pink kid or calf. These are $17.95 and $19.95.

Pins—on with rhinestone and pearls encircling the face have gold tassels at the base. Set in antique silver, they're $19.95 and $24.95.

For evening wear, there's a solid rhinestone bracelet set in a very feminine pattern. The watch is massed with matching rhinestones. This watch would please any woman, and would be worn with pride that it is truly attractive. The face is white, to add to the lustre of the stones. This one is $19.95.

You've seen them advertised in the large fashion mags, now you can buy them in town in one of my favorite shops. Call me at 2-3131 and I'll give you the names of the stores where I found the items mentioned in today's column.

Widow Should Avoid
'Fifth Wheel' Complex

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

One of the biggest handicaps a widow faces is her own attitude toward widowhood.

Hurlock

(Q)—"I lost my husband a year ago and miss him terribly. Although I have two sons, one is away at school and the other is 12 years old—just the age when he won't go anywhere with me. All my friends are married and have their own interests, though they are very nice to me. They invite me to go out with them and to their homes but I always feel like a fifth wheel to a wagon. I am only 41 years old and still young enough to go out now and then and enjoy life a little. My days aren't too bad as I work, but the evenings are very lonely. I know it is much easier for a man than a woman to find friends and I would like some suggestions from you about how I can make some friends so I won't be so lonely."—T.B.

(A)—First of all, you must get over the idea that you are not wanted, that you are a "fifth wheel to a wagon," and that people invite you to do things with them just because they are sorry for you. Most widows feel this way and that adds to their loneliness.

Then replace this idea with the one that you are or can be a social asset. Your friends often need an extra woman, even when the guests are equally divided between men and women. If the hostess is to be a real hostess and see that everyone is having a good time, an extra person to take care of details is invaluable to her.

This is where a widow can step in. Offer to get to a party or even to an informal entertainment early and help with last-minute details. Then tactfully suggest to your hostess that she leave matters in your hands while she spends her time with her guests. You will find this role will bring you in touch with everyone present but without making you feel out of things. In fact, you will be in the centre of everything and will be making the party move smoothly.

Wedding Vows

Recent Ceremony

Pink peonies and stocks were placed at the altar and the chancel rail of St. John's Church recently for the wedding ceremony in which Miss Jane Ann Kinney, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. E. E. Kinney, Doncaster Drive, became the bride of Barry Dennis Birnie, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bernie of Chilliwack. Canon George Biddle officiated and Capt. Kinney gave his daughter in marriage.

For the ceremony, the bride wore an ankle-length dress of net with lace panels, matching the lace of the dainty jacket with lily point sleeves. Her fingertip veil was held to a crown of pearls and sequins. Red roses and stephanotis were in her bridal bouquet.

Maid of honor Miss Frances Switzer and bridesmaid Miss Noella Goode wore net and lace dresses in aqua and mauve, respectively. Their bouquets were of salmon pink carnations and yellow carnations. They wore dainty headresses in tone.

Flower girls Darlene and Dorothy Sheppard wore yellow dresses trimmed with lace. They carried colonial bouquets of yellow and mauve sweet peas with matching headresses.

Best man was Garry Johns and ushers Robert Kinney and Gordie McMann.

A reception followed in Newstead Hall, where carnations and roses formed floral decoration. The three-tier cake, on a silver stand was flanked by white candles in silver holders in the centre of the bride's table. P. H. Cull, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to her happiness.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip to Vancouver and Seattle, the bride wore a beige box suit with copper shoes and purse and cocoa-toned hat. A corsage of yellow roses was pinned to her pale green coat.

Mr. and Mrs. Birnie have made their home in this city.

Attended 40th
Supreme Session

Queen Ann Bagattin of Victoria's Miriam Temple No. 2, Daughters of the Nile, returned last Sunday from Omaha, Neb., where she attended the 40th annual session of Supreme Temple, Daughters of the Nile. She was accompanied by Princess Royal, Lilian Clark; Past Queen Jennie Lillie; Junior Past Queen Thelma Randall, who acted as Canadian flag bearer, and Past Queen Jessie Meiss, who was one of the escorts to the Canadian flag. Also attending the supreme session were Supreme Princess Badora, Dorothy Neen, and Queen Phyllis McEwen, both of Zarah Temple No. 72, Vancouver. More than 1,500 members from all parts of Canada, United States and Hawaii also attended.

Supreme Queen Ruth Rocho, who made an official visit to Miriam Temple last November, presided at the meetings. The new supreme queen, Mrs. Ruth Deaton, Omaha, who was installed on the final evening of the gathering, is expected to make her official visit to the local temple next November.

WEDDING BELLS IN EARLY JULY

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Nancy Doreen, daughter of Mrs. W. B. Anders, 2095 Oak Bay Avenue, to Mr. George Edward Callow, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Callow, 430 Pany street. The wedding will take place on Saturday, July 7 at 8 p.m. in Christ Church Cathedral. Mrs. E. H. Glover, sister of the groom-elect, will be matron of honor; the bride-elect's sisters, Mrs. A. deGoutiere, Miss Bernice Anders and Miss Janet Anders, bridesmaid and bridesmaids. Mr. John Callow, Mr. Charles Callow and Mr. Robert Callow, brothers of the groom-elect, will act as best man and ushers respectively. (Photos by Goertz.)

Senior Senator Urges Women
Support Sex in Public Life

HALIFAX (CP)—Senator Cairine Wilson says more women would enter public life if they had the support of Canadian women in general.

She said in an interview here that women in the home now have a better opportunity than ever before to participate in public affairs.

"I'm delighted to have more women in the Senate," said the country's first woman senator, who sat as the only woman in the upper house from 1930 to 1935.

Senator Wilson said she does not resent the Speaker's use of the words "honorable gentlemen" in referring to men and women members, although there had been a decision to substitute "honorable senators." However, women should be accepted as equals and not set apart from their men colleagues.

PTA NEWS

Frank Hobbs—Final meeting of Frank Hobbs PTA was held the evening of the annual sports day at the school when 264 students took part. The PTA served ice cream to all students at this event. A film, "The Life of a Bee," was shown at the meeting and refreshments were served.

Doncaster-Cedar Hill—Mrs. Irene Byers, president of Doncaster-Cedar Hill PTA, opened the Beginners' Tea held in the auditorium. Mrs. L. McClung welcomed mothers and their children. Speakers were Mrs. F. Campbell, Grade 1 teacher, who spoke on preparation of the child for his new adventure in schooling; Miss Shipley, public health nurse, who spoke on the health of the child entering school and health care of the child after he enters school. Miss U. Jacobson, consultant teacher for primary teachers, gave a talk on the social readiness of the child for school.

Tea was served from tables decorated with flowers. Presentations were made to Miss B. Main and Miss M. Brown, whose marriages will take place soon, and to Mrs. G. King and Mr. P. Smith, who are leaving.

WOMEN'S PRESS CLUB GIVES
FIRST MEMORIAL AWARD

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Elda Cadogan, wife of the editor-publisher of a country weekly, Saturday was announced as the first winner of the Canadian Women's Press Club's annual $100 Rica Farquharson Award.

The prize, for the Canadian woman playwright considered to have made the year's outstanding contribution to humorous drama, commemorates the late Rica Farquharson, wife of Robert Farquharson, counsellor of the Canadian Embassy in Washington. She died in Washington last year.

She was a life-long newspaper woman with an interest in light drama, believing that Canadians take themselves too seriously.

Mrs. Cadogan is the wife of publisher George Cadogan of the weekly Durham, Ont., Chronicle.

World Tired of Grotesque
Fashions, Designer Thinks

NEW YORK (AP)—Women don't really like to look like lampshades, string beans or little boys. They like to look like women.

This drastic discovery was made by fashion designer Adele Simpson during a recent trip during which she talked to thousands of women in scores of towns north, south, east and west. Says she:

"Women are tired of fads and grotesque fashions. They're also fed up on the over-casual look, which sometimes turns out to be merely sloppy. Surprisingly enough it's now fashionable to be lady-like, neat, elegant, properly hatted and gloved, even a bit formal."

During the recent openings of her fall fashion collection, Mrs. Simpson explained the research and psychology behind the look of fall clothes—the elegance of town clothes, the important hats, the return of the long evening gown. The changes in the silhouette are sub-

Asia's Worst Quake Kills 100 Afghans

NEW DELHI (AP)—Five days of earthquakes in Afghanistan may have killed more than 100 persons, reports from Kabul said today. The tremors—described as the landlocked Asian area's worst recorded earthquake—apparently were strongest in the mountains of northern Afghanistan, an area peopled largely by primitive nomadic tribes.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE Fluoride Machinery Bought by Pr. Rupert

(From The Canadian Press)
PRINCE RUPERT—Prince Rupert has moved a step closer to fluoridation of its water supply with city council approval of purchase of fluoridation equipment. Council passed a works board report recommending purchase of automatic equipment for $5,392, including installation and operating instructions.

SEVEN NOMINATED
VANCOUVER—Seven candidates were nominated Wednesday for the June 27 aldermanic by-election to fill the vacancy left by the death of Alderman Donald McTaggart. The candidates: Frank M. Baker, Albert Dunn, Edwin H. Funk, Stephen Halom, Samuel B. Jenkins, Peter McAllister and Arthur Riley.

7 TO BE EVICTED
NORTH VANCOUVER—Eviction proceedings will be launched against seven families living in the Heywood district here if they haven't vacated their wartime houses by June 30. The land on which the houses stand must be turned over to the city by June 30. It will be used for industry.

COST UP $3,000,000
KELOWNA—Cost of the Okanagan flood control project has increased $3,000,000 since its original estimate in 1946. The project, approved by both federal and provincial governments, was originally estimated at $1,700,000. It is now expected to cost $4,750,000 by the time it is completed at the end of 1957.

REEVE UNDER FIRE
RICHMOND—A cry of "We don't want you as reeve," broke up an occasionally-heated public hearing on Richmond's new zoning by-law Wednesday. The protest followed an exchange between Reeve Ray Parsons and another ratepayer, who has asked whether council proposed to be guided by a majority of

... SIX-DAY WEEK
Each signed a statement: "I am in favor of making whatever change may be necessary to the Shops Regulation Act and the by-laws of the city of Victoria to make it possible for those merchants who wish to do so, to stay open for business six days a week."
"You will note from this we are seeking changes which would permit ourselves or others to remain open but are not seeking to force others to comply with our wishes," the brief added.

COUNCIL OKAYED
It pointed out the drive has already been endorsed by council (which on April 12 wrote Black asking relaxation of the law), and 12 other local organizations including retail clerks, seven hotels, 40 cafes and restaurants, CPR local installations and shipping, the 4,000-member Victoria Automobile Association, chamber of commerce and others.

The Shops Regulation and Weekly Holiday Act, drawn in 1935 and since not amended, lists as exemptions, bakeries, cigar stands, drug stores, newsstands, cafes, fruit stands, florists, confectioners and vendors of soft drinks and dairy products.

To this list is added the words "... and such other trades and businesses as may be declared exempt by order-in-council published in the Gazette."
It is that clause which the six-day committee feels opens the door for immediate city action and cabinet approval.

PARALYSIS
The brief said in Vancouver, where a five-day shopping week was attempted a few years ago, paralysis resulted and by the time a six-day week was affected many new businesses had located in the suburbs.

Traffic surveys show tourists now by-pass Victoria on Wednesdays. Capt. O. J. Williams, CPR manager of B.C. Coast Steamships Service, is quoted as follows:
"It is my definite opinion ... Wednesday afternoon closing adversely affects ... traffic."

He showed that in the months between July and September, excluding holidays, the percentage of Victoria-Seattle round-trip tickets dipped seriously on Wednesdays.
Sunday was 9.8 per cent, Monday 13.6, Tuesday 16.6, Wednesday 11.1, Thursday 17.7, Friday 12.6 and Saturday 18.6.

Blaney's Travel Service manager C. E. Blaney said in the brief numerous complaints had been received with regard to Victoria Wednesday half-day closing "... and there is definitely a loss of trade during the tourist season."
The brief claimed that on Memorial Day weekend in United States, which fell on May 30, a Wednesday "... over 1,000 visitors walked our streets that afternoon, trying many doors, hoping to find places where they could shop, but most doors were closed."
July 4, the United States' biggest summer holiday, also falls on a Wednesday.

Rescuers Save Prospector Marooned in Colorado Canyon

MOAB, Utah (AP)—When a boat carrying two uranium prospectors capsized in the raging, muddy Colorado river, one of the men took off "over the rim" to the west.
The other, 45-year-old Charles L. Robinson of Hot Springs, Ark., elected to work along the river and eat berries to stay alive.
Robinson was rescued Tuesday, exactly eight days after the mishap.
Instead of berries, he ate raw lizards and cactus, and he lost 42 pounds during his ordeal.
"Lizards taste a lot like asparagus," he said. "Those rapids are fantastic. ... You can't imagine how hot, precipitous the cliffs ..."
Robinson declared that he is going straight home to Hot Springs, "where there are trees and water—I've had enough of the Colorado."
Robinson's companion, Bryan Waelder, 52, of Long Beach, Calif., was rescued last Friday after walking overland almost 100 miles through the desert toward Hanksville, Utah.
Deputy Sheriff Bill Wells of Hanksville, known as Utah's "flying bishop," spotted Waelder from the air and rescued him.
Several search parties continued the hunt for Robinson, and it was Wells' party which found his tracks where he had emerged after swimming the Colorado river. They tracked him to an abandoned prospector's cabin and found him pounding a can of beans on a rock to open it.
"This was a stupid, idiotic thing. ... I was rescued alive only by a divine act of God."
"There is nothing heroic about my side of the story

The maid who brought breakfast to us on our first morning at Fort Belvedere told us that the Prince had finished his an hour before and had gone into the garden. Shortly after Ernest and I had wandered into the drawing room I observed advancing up the terrace slope an outlandish figure in baggy plus fours, a thick sweater, hair tousled, and carrying in one hand a billhook, a machete-like tool for cutting brush. It was the Prince, with his cairn terriers Cora and Jaggs yapping happily at his heels.

"Ah," said Thelma with mock consternation, "I take it your guests are to be ordered back to the lair."

The Prince explained that he occupied his weekends trying to clear away the tangle of undergrowth that had overwhelmed the hillside during the decades the property had lain either disused or neglected. "My particular enemy," he said brandishing the billhook, "is the laurel, which I have sworn to annihilate if it costs me my last guest. Come along, if you want to, I can equip you with the necessary weapons."

"It's not exactly a command," interjected Gee Trotter, "but I've never known anybody to escape." Exercise was a pursuit that Ernest favored only in the role of a spectator. And his interest in gardening was strictly aesthetic. I was therefore quite taken aback when, with an unwonted display of enthusiasm, he said he'd be delighted to cut laurel.

"IT HAS CHARM"

He went upstairs for a sweater. While he was gone the Prince took me out on the terrace to show me the grounds. From where we stood the land sloped gently towards a lovely lake in the distance, known as Virginia Water. Just below us the green lawn ended in a semi-circular stone battlement in which were emplaced 30 or more 18th century Belgian cannons. Directly below the battlement on one side was a large swimming pool, where once had been a lily pond, and on the other side a dirt tennis court.

The Prince walked me around the grounds, showing where he had had yew trees felled so as to let in light and open the view. He tried to sound matter of fact, but his inner pleasure over what he had found and restored to life and beauty burst through the guise of nonchalance. "It's certainly not a beautiful place, as houses in England go," he said with a quizzical glance at the strange conglomeration of turrets on the hill. "But for me it has unusual charm, and I've found more pleasure in fixing it up than..." he checked himself. "There is no reason why I should bore you with this."

MEN'S WORK

The others just then overtook us, and the Prince went off with the men to equip them with billhooks and heavy gloves. With the Prince showing the way we started down a path through a woodland of birch and magnificent cedar. All this had until recently been an impassable mass of laurel and briar; now it was given over to rare and lovely rhododendrons, many of which he had planted with his own hands. Narrow footpaths wandered off in search of some interesting glen or vista; these had also been the Prince's conceit. Then the path we were following ended abruptly in a dark wall of laurel.

"Here we are," said the Prince briskly. "You can see now what I have been up against. Well, this is the last bad stretch. By summer I shall have finished with it." Stooping, he began hacking at the untidy undergrowth with fierce but practiced strokes. At that point Thelma, Connie and I decided to leave the men to what was clearly a man's work.

HIS PRIDE

After lunch the Prince took Ernest and me on a tour of the house. He was especially proud of the little library, which contained some good Queen Anne pieces. His own bedroom, on the ground floor, was a large and charming room, with tall windows hung with red chintz curtains looking out upon the garden. The walls were painted white, and all about were photographs of his family. What fascinated me was the architectural wizardry that had been exercised in imparting to the interior of this sprawling fort such an atmosphere of warmth and attractive informality.

The end of the day produced its final small revelation of the

NEW VETERANS' HOME ASKED FOR VICTORIA

VANCOUVER (CP)—A demand for a new hospital where veterans could live, to be built in Victoria, was made by Canadian Legion convention delegates here today.

Delegates were told that it was illogical and uneconomic to use the superior facilities of the present veterans' hospital in Victoria for "domiciliary patients," as care for such patients could be provided more cheaply in a separate domiciliary hospital.

Delegates asked for the extension of the present hospital by three stories as an alternative to a new hospital.

All-Night Fight Restores Power

Island-Wide Blackout As Hart Penstock Collapses

A night-long battle by construction men who built new foundations under a sagging 12-foot wooden pipe at the John Hart hydro development resulted in the island's electrical power supply returning to normal today.

A preliminary estimate, made prior to detailed examination, set the amount of damage at $25,000 to $50,000.

It followed an island-wide blackout Wednesday night, when the collapse of footings supporting the oldest of three wood-stave pipes carrying water to the powerhouse, opened great holes in the pipe and damaged a second.

The plant was closed down immediately, and portions of Victoria and other island areas were without power for up to 50 minutes. Island industries were threatened, but the plant now is operating at two-thirds of capacity—sufficient to meet all demands at this time of year.

As the first pipe sagged the staves spread and released a torrent of water, which in turn undermined footings under the second pipe. The third was unharmed.

Just what caused the ground

Saw Water Racing Down on Plant

First intimation of trouble came when powerhouse crews saw water racing down the hill overlooking the plant and townsite. The water swept into the plant and flooded basements in homes.

"I was notified, and made an immediate check," said Arthur E. Price, plant superintendent. "Then I ordered everything shut down. That is what caused the blackout."

Commission headquarters was notified of the trouble, and re-

to give way under the first pipe is not known, but it is suspected that a leak occurred where the wooden pipe joints a steel conduit for the last plunge down to the powerhouse turbines.

The pipe is inspected regularly. Although damage appears to be moderate, pulp mills at Har-mac, Duncan Bay and Alberni lost production on their graveyard shifts.

It was feared that they would be shut down for weeks. But fast work by B.C. Power Commission crews restored service within a few minutes on No. 3 penstock, which feeds water to two of the six 20,000-kilowatt generators in the powerhouse. Nine hours later another two units were back in production.

pair crews were alerted to prepare for the all-night session. "Three of the cradles supporting the second penstock had been undermined by water pouring from the first," he said. "A 12-man crew went to work right away putting wooden shoring under it, and by 5.30 a.m. we were able to say we would have the pipe repaired in another two hours."

A Northern Construction Co. crew repaired the damage to TORONTO (CP)—Citizens in central Canada, almost prostrate from two consecutive days of record-breaking temperatures, boiled both from and at the weather today as they were promised yet another scorcher.

Toronto residents, especially, were hot under the collar in more ways than one as they were told to brace themselves for a high of 95 degrees.

Experts Back Mica Dam Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton disclosed today that consulting engineers have proved the feasibility of a $247,000,000 hydro-electric power station at Mica Creek on the Columbia River in British Columbia.

The Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission also described as "frivolous" new United States proposals for construction of the proposed Libby dam in western Montana.

Testifying before the Commons external affairs committee, Gen. McNaughton ruled out proposals for construction of 10 dams on the Fraser River and its tributaries for harnessing power and facilitating the movement of salmon up and downstream.

Gen. McNaughton said the report on the proposed Mica Creek project, which would do much to relieve B.C.'s present

Merchants Urge Store-Hour Change By Order-in-Council

Victoria city council today unanimously endorsed a merchants' brief asking government action on a six-day shopping week here.

Council authorized Mayor P. C. Scurrah to ask the cabinet to institute six-day shopping by order-in-council.

The merchants' brief claims that the Shops Regulation and Weekly Holiday Act can be bridged by such action. It was previously understood that no change could be effected in the regulations until the legislature sits again.

The plan, which is expected to increase by almost a third mid-week shopping by tourists, was submitted in a brief by Six-Day Shopping Week Committee of Victoria.

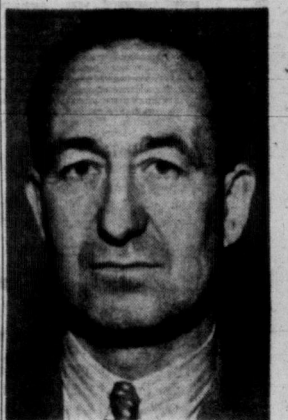

Chairman is J. Harold Wilson and legal representative J. Alan Baker.

The brief says it has been legally advised that present exemptions to the weekly holiday requirement can be added to by order-in-council. The brief asks council to seek government action permitting Wednesday afternoon sales by women's and children's, men's and boys' apparel stores; antique, china and glassware stores; department stores, shops for sale of woolens, variety goods, leather goods, staples, dry goods, silverware, watches and jewelry.

Groceries and other food stores, unless they hold a confectionery licence, are at present required to close by city by-law, but the regulation is loosely administered and the six-day committee did not ask council to alter regulations in that respect.

The committee brief attests it represents at least 80 licensed city business houses including vendors of leather goods, confections, newspapers and magazines, clothing, jewelry, notions, stationery, pharmacies, hardware, flowers, antiques, and the city's two largest department stores.

Judge Would Hang Witness

REGINA (CP) — An appeal court judge said Wednesday that the only person he would hang on the evidence of the chief crown witness against convicted murderer Jacob Dyck would be the witness himself.

Mr. Justice P. H. Gordon said as the court heard the appeal of Dyck against his conviction that he would not believe any of the evidence of Elizabeth Tootsie La Fleche.

Dyck was tried three times for the murder of 74-year-old Mike Todor, who was slain Jan. 1, 1954. His body lay sealed in his own room for 16 months before police found it.

After the latest trial, Dyck was sentenced to be hanged July 24.

As the appeal court judges heard Dyck's appeal Wednesday they commented and asked questions freely.

Mr. Justice A. T. Procter said that the woman took a secret oath (to tell anything but the truth) at the preliminary hearing and the first trial.

"She lied to escape some penalty she was afraid of if she told the truth," he said. "Now what lie was that?"

He said one objection he had to the charge by the trial judge, Mr. Justice A. Doherty, was that he failed to mention La Fleche was "an unmitigated liar. She was not only that, but a drug addict, alcoholic thief, self-confessed perjurer and bigamist."

The judges repeatedly expressed doubt that the evidence showed that Dyck was the only one who could have committed the crime.

Presbyterian 1957 Assembly At Vancouver

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Presbyterians Wednesday selected Vancouver as the site of next year's general assembly. Delegates to the church's 82nd general assembly voted overwhelmingly in favor of meeting in Kerrisdale Presbyterian Church, Vancouver, next June.

The invitation was extended by Rev. Harry Lennox, rector of the church.

The assembly heard Rev. Eoin Mackay of Saskatoon present a report on the mission and state of the Presbyterian church.

"We can have a sense of reasonable satisfaction over the state of the church," said Mr. Mackay.

"Basically it is in good heart and health. But as we look at it we cannot say that it gives the appearance of a church that is really on fire."

"We are not making the impact on the life of our nation that we could make. Our mission must be to push on and show our people that we really mean business," he said.

TWO B.C. SLAYERS GRANTED REPRIEVE

VANCOUVER (CP)—A reprieve until Oct. 16 was granted Wednesday by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson to Joseph Gordon and James Carey.

They were found guilty on April 26 of the slaying Dec. 7 of Constable Gordon Sinclair.

The execution was set originally for July 10, but their appeal does not open until Sept. 17, prosecutor William A. Schultz told the trial judge when he asked for postponement of the hanging.

Ain't it a Shame

THIS isn't a bit the column that I meant to write. I meant to write a pretty piece of rusticana. I meant to write in lyric terms about the path that goes across a field, over a stile, and through a woody patch to a neighbor's house.

I was going to give readers a poetic burst about the orange glow of curled-back petals on tiger lily blooms, about the fluffiness of spiraea blossom, about the pinkish, waxy flowers on the snow-berry bushes.

Oh, the beauty of that unwritten column. The delicacy. The poetic quality. The eye of wonder. Ruth Enke tiptoeing through the woods for the delight of the pastoral-minded.

Ruth

To heck with that. To heck with every thing.

For my kitchen sink's blocked up. And it's squalor, squalor all the way.

There's no delicacy in my sink right now. There's no poetic beauty. Instead, there's six inches of the foulest washing-up water that I've ever seen.

Six full inches. I've measured them. I keep on measuring them by sticking in the family ruler from the homework drawer. And the water level doesn't drop a bit.

I've been listening for a little gurgle which might mean that, somehow, the block had given way down below. But all is silence. Deathly silence.

No dyspeptic gurgle comes to encourage me. No nothing. Just a stagnant pool of revolving water with bits of debris floating on the surface.

Hush. Is that a subterranean gurgle that I hear beside me as I sit with 2B pencil in my hand. Come, let me hear thee.

Nope. Nuttin'. Just a false alarm. Just a bit of wishful thinking.

Okay. Let's be Pollyannas and see the beauty of this mess in which I was fool enough to scrub the roasting pan, and swirl it after with almost-boiling water from the tap.

See the exquisite pallor of crisp young cucumber slice and the darker, richer green of rind. See the little top of square-ish milk bottle. Observe the fragment of garden lettuce leaf, the golden circle of tender carrot, the greyish lump of rejected gristle.

How beautifully they float upon this greasy water with the iridescent sheen!

Has earth any fairer sights to show than these?

You betcha life it has. I can think of plenty of other still waters that I'd rather be beside.

But they are not for me today.

And today happens to be our wedding anniversary.

Nineteen years of married life. And where have they got us?

They've got us to a state where we can have a really animated conversation about household plumbing and the kitchen drains.

But let's not be bitter about it. Let's not get all weepy about the romance and roses at the start.

For richer, for poorer, for better, for worse. And what could be worse than this?

This is where sex gets yer, ducks. Ain't it a blinking rhyme?

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Trying Movie Cartoons

LONDON—A company, Speller Films, has been formed to make British movie cartoons. They say that the Americans have had the monopoly of this field of entertainment long enough. Britain has the talent and the technical skill. They intend to go ahead with producing short cartoon features, plus full-length ones. Etc., etc.

We've heard all this before. Other outfits here have started with the best intentions and some drift. Only in isolated cases does a successful movie cartoon come out of England.

Animal Farm is an example and the guiding light behind that was Continental. It would be a good time for Speller Films to give up, because there are three types of films that the British just can't make—westerns, musicals and cartoons. A pity, because they are three of the big pullers-in at the box office.

It's not surprising that the British can't make westerns. It is for the same reason that they can't play ice hockey. There is no tradition of hockey on ice behind them and they haven't the facilities for it to be widespread. Even if they wanted to get into the lucrative western market (and there are enough Canadian actors here to play at cowboy on the screen), it would be kind of daff trying to shoot the films on Hampstead Heath.

Nearest the British have got to a western—a good one it was, too—was "The Overlanders," filmed in Australia with the home-grown version of cowboys. I know the British companies would love to be churning out westerns because they represent such a steady, sure-fire income. I've often wondered why they don't look toward Canada in that regard.

Film musicals the British are completely hopeless at producing, which doesn't make as much sense as their inability to turn out westerns. They have no shortage at all of top-flight composers, singers and dancers. Yet they are quite incapable of getting them on film and making it entertaining.

Last full-scale musical they attempted was "London Town," starring comedian Sid Field, in 1947. This was such a flop that they haven't had the courage to try again. Agnes De Mille, the American woman who made her name with the dance routines in Oklahoma, etc., had been imported to look after that side of "London Town" and she was so appalled at the mess they made of it that she offered to pay the producing company to take her name off the credits.

Why British movie production talent can't flourish in the musical field is just one of those baffling things like why the English put milk in tea first and the Americans put it in after.

But as regards movie cartoons, I think it's obvious why, despite the fact that England has no lack of inventive humorous artists and her political cartoonists are streets ahead of the American, this country is a dead loss in that sphere. Movie cartoons started and were built up as an outgrowth of the comic-strip. There is no comic-strip tradition here and it is only now, belatedly, that readers try to take interest in the ones that English papers hammer at them.

The English would be smart to leave movie cartoons entirely to the people who do them superbly—the Americans.

FOOTNOTE: Can anyone tell me why animals always come out well in cartoons, humans practically never?

Producing Rhubarb Pulled Too Often

There is a tendency to pull rhubarb stalks far too often from plants which are producing well.

When this is done the plants lose their vigor because the loss of leaves materially reduces their ability to manufacture food. The result is a quantity of thin stalks which lack both quality and flavor.

Pulling should be spread over several places, taking a few stalks from each root, or the entire pull from one plant which is then left to recuperate while the others supply the succeeding pulls.

Of course, no stalks should be removed the first season after planting. All the food the new plants are capable of producing is needed to build up good roots and crowns for later years.

Quality is lowered as the size of a plant increases. The best stalks are produced when the plants are

Jealous Teachers Blamed For School Tog Crackdown

GRIMSBY, Eng. (Reuters)—A classroom crisis was brewing at a co-educational school here Wednesday where teen-age girls were banned from wearing sweaters, plunge-necklines and fancy underwear.

The new edict by the board of governors was in support of headmaster S. M. Hill's "dress properly—or else" campaign, which began last week when a boy was sent home three times for appearing at school without a tie.

Wednesday, the school authorities took a second look at the pretty girl students. Anne Garrod, 15, in a well-fitting sweater, was sent home at lunchtime and told to put on "something more suitable."

Bridegroom Falls to Death From Airliner

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Three investigations were under way today in the death of a bridegroom of one day who plunged 6,000 feet from the open door of a Piedmont airliner Wednesday night.

The badly mangled body of Oren Ase Pruitt, 38, of Charlotte, N.C., was found by police in the graveyard of a church six miles north of Shelby, N. C. The impact tore part of his clothing and his shoes from his body.

The body dug a hole nearly four feet deep in hard packed earth. Luther Haynes, church caretaker, said there was "a sort of explosion when it hit."

The couple married Tuesday in York, S.C., were on their honeymoon to Asheville.

Mrs. Pruitt, under a doctor's care at her parents home, said her husband got up to go to the men's room. She added:

"I heard... it was a little while after that... a big whoosh. The wind was screaming in. Somebody said the door had blown off. 'I thought Oren was in the men's room still. Nobody got up. I was afraid to look back there. And then a stewardess came to my seat and sat down beside me. I knew then. Nobody ever told me anything. I don't know what happened. I just knew he was gone.'"

Capt. B. B. Slaughter, the pilot, said the flight was about 20 minutes out of Charlotte en route to Asheville when the mishap occurred at 6:08 p.m. Slaughter, flying since 1939, said he had never heard of a plane door of this type coming open accidentally.

THREE LATCHES

W. G. McGee, a Piedmont official who rushed to Asheville, said: "There is not a way in the world the door could have been forced open by pressure and the door is not something you can just bump against and open."

The airline said the door is fastened by three bayonet-type latches and that an attendant checks them through small glass windows before takeoffs. He also said a red light comes on in the pilot's cabin if the latches are not fastened.

McGee said none of the 24 passengers saw the mishap "except one man, who said he saw Pruitt's heels going out the door."

Councils Must Hurry Raw Milk Measures

Esquimalt's raw milk by-law will be debated by municipal council Monday night, Reeve A. C. Wurtele said today.

If passed, the by-law will be given a second reading at a special meeting, in order to meet the June 30 deadline set by the provincial government.

An act passed at the last session of Legislature makes it illegal to sell raw milk in the province unless the municipality has a special by-law permitting the sale.

Saanich council has passed the by-law, and city council has taken the first steps, indicating it will be passed. Oak Bay council is still in early stages of discussion.
